APPLICATION OF SANCTIONS TENSELY AWAITED IN ITALY

LABOURITES SHOW DISAPPOINTMENT FAILURE TO REGAIN LOST GROUND COUNTRY'S RESOUNDING VOTE OF CONFIDENCE IN GOVERNMENT

London, Yesterday.

Not since the Reform Bill of 1831 has any party received such a resounding vote of confidence. The high average of 71 polled. The apparent apathy and smallness of the meetings is attributed partly to the bad weather and mostly to the nightly broadcasts, enabling 6,000,000 voters to make up their minds calmly in their homes, undisturbed by heckling interruptions.

The Labourites do not disguise their disappointment, especially at being unable to gain the lost ground in Wales, Scotland and the Industrial North, though Durham's 11 seats solid for Labour are a notable exception.

Mr. W. Nunn's failure at Whitehaven is attributed to the closing down of a mine, throwing 2,000 miners out of work on the eve of the election. The Conservatives are frankly surprised.

ELECTION VOTING IS ANALYSED

SOME IMPRESSIVE FEATURES

SOUTHERN COUNTIES WERE SOLIDLY CONSERVATIVE

London, Yesterday.

The result of the General Election is variously described by the morning papers as an overwhelming or magnificent victory, or a complete or astonishing triumph, or a striking vote of confidence for the Government. The Opposition papers lay stress on the Labour gains and on the aggregate votes polled by the anti-Government candidates.

Other Cables on Home Election Results will be found on Pages 10, 11, 13 and 17.

In a leading article The Times says: "The extent of the triumph may be measured by the fact that for the first time since the War the same Government has been returned at two successive elections, and that no normal election since 1832, with the single exception of 1906, has ever given any Government so large a majority as that which is now secured for their second term of office by the National Government. The result is far more favourable to the Government than

"Peculiar" Monster At Toishan

ALLEGED CAPTURE

Toishan, Yesterday.

It is reported here that a most peculiar monster, described as possessing three horns, a horse-like body and a face resembling a cat, was captured at Toishan recently by a party of Chinese hunters.

Its eyes, it is reported, are like brass balls, while from its mouth red-coloured liquid flows continuously. It weighs over 100 catties. — Neutral News.

This picture by radio shows Haile Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia, bowing before General Emilio de Bono and staff in Addis Ababa and pledging his loyalty to Italy. Emperor Haile Selassie denounced Gages and authorised any soldier to shoot him on sight.

RUMOUR MONGERS BUSY IN SHANGHAI DRASTIC STEPS TO CHECK PANIC

Shanghai, Yesterday.

The exodus from Chupai and Hongkew, including Japanese and some foreigners, continues unabated. The Chinese authorities are taking drastic steps to check panic, which is attributed largely to malicious rumour-mongers with axes to grind. So far five alleged rumour-mongers have been arrested and handed over to the Garrison Commission.

The Japanese marines stationed in the vicinity of the crime have been withdrawn, but frequent patrols of lorries, loads of tin-hatted and bayoneted Japanese impart an air of grim reality to the fears of the populace.

However, close observers feel that the Japanese are prepared to stay their hands at Shanghai while the plans in North China are maturing.

Japanese Troops Gathering

SEVEN TROOP TRAINS AT SHANHAIKUAN

Peking: Japanese troops continue to gather at Shanhaikuan. It is confirmed that seven troop trains arrived at Shanhaikuan and some light artillery, with 26 motor-trucks, including some with caterpillar wheels. It is also confirmed that engineer units of the Kwantung Army are standing by at Mukden, ready to move to Shanhaikuan if ordered. — Reuter.

OFFICIAL CIRCLES NONCOMMITTAL

NO DEMANDS YET PRESENTED

POPULACE STILL APPREHENSIVE

Nanking, Yesterday.

While official Chinese circles are closely following the latest developments in Shanghai and North China, at present they refrain from comment on the Sino-Japanese situation, except to emphasise that up to now no Japanese demands have been presented in connection with the recent incidents in Shanghai.

They point out that the Japanese authorities merely request Chinese officials to do their utmost to prevent a repetition of anti-Japanese incidents.

GRAND COUNCIL TO HOLD MEETING ANTI-FRENCH FEELING FLARES UP

HORSE-DRAWN CABS REPLACE MOTOR-TAXIS IN ROME

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Rome, Yesterday.

An atmosphere of tense expectation prevails throughout Italy in view of the possible effects of the sanctions, which will come into force on Monday. The Fascist Grand Council will assemble tonight at 10 o'clock in the Palazzo Venezia, and it is generally anticipated that the supreme organ of the Fascist State will take some momentous decisions in the political as well as economic spheres, and that Signor Mussolini will seize the occasion to make another important declaration.

Among the population the feeling against France is running even higher than against England. A violent anti-French demonstration occurred yesterday evening during the showing of a French film at a local cinema, the spectators demanding the withdrawal of the film amid loud cries of "Down with France!"

The reorganisation of daily life in all its aspects has now led to horse-drawn cabs coming into use again, since the high price of gasoline makes the running of motor-cabs unprofitable. — Trans-Ocean Service.

Advance On Danakil Sector

STUBBORN RESISTANCE BY ABYSSINIANS

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Asmara, Yesterday.

General Marinetti's troops on the Danakil sector continued their advance towards Antale yesterday. The Abyssinian detachment which retired after offering stubborn resistance to General Marinetti at Asbi are now reported to have taken up positions about 35 kilometres north-east of Antale.

The troops of General Marinetti have established contact with the forces commanded by Colonel Orenzini, with whom they are jointly covering the left wing of the northern army.

An aerial bombardment of the Antale region by the Italians, it is announced, lasted a full hour, the planes dropping incendiary as well as other bombs. The Abyssinians attempted to mislead

"Assistant Dictator" is the title now applied to Achille Starace, above, who is second only to Premier Mussolini among the Fascist leaders.

Rome: Fifty members of the Fascist Grand Council will gather at 10 p.m. to-morrow to discuss the situation on the eve of the application of sanctions, including the Duce's conversation with Sir Eric Drummond and the significance of the British election results.

Signor Mussolini is expected to make an important statement on the implications of the Italian note to the sanctionist countries, to define the basis of Italy's continued membership of the League, to reaffirm that Italy cannot withdraw from Abyssinia, and to detail the measures to be taken in resistance to the sanctions.

GEN. DE BONO REPLACED IN HIGH COMMAND

APPOINTED TASK CONCLUDED

PROMOTED TO RANK OF MARSHAL

Rome, Yesterday.

The sensational replacement of General de Bono as High Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief in East Africa by Marshal Pietro Badoglio is explained in a communique, which says that with the re-conquest of Makalle General de Bono has concluded the task entrusted to him. The Duce has sent him a cordial telegram and the King has promoted him to the rank of Marshal of Italy.

It is believed that the strain of the campaign is beginning to tell on General de Bono, who is 69. So far his conduct of the operations on the northern front has had the highest praise.

Marshal Badoglio is 64 years of age. He has been the Chief of Staff since 1932 and is regarded as one of the ablest military brains in Europe. He was Envoy Extraordinary to the United States in 1921 and was subsequently Ambassador at Brazil. — Reuter.

General Emilio de Bono, above, Marshal of Italy, has been relieved of the post of Commander-in-Chief of the Italian armies invading Ethiopia.

DAGGAHBUR COMPLETELY DESTROYED

Capture Attempt Repulsed

ABYSSINIANS FIGHT WITH GREAT RESOLUTION AND TENACITY

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Addis Ababa, Yesterday.

After all the Italian attempts to capture the town of Dagga-hur had been repulsed by the Abyssinians, who fought with great resolution and tenacity, according to despatches arriving here, Italian aeroplanes bombed the town and completely destroyed it.

The picturesque Pilgrimage Church is among the ruins, but it is stated that the garrison escaped unscathed. — Trans-Ocean Service.

Italian Optimism Tempered

Asmara: The optimism aroused earlier in the week by the successful Italian drive on the Ogaden front was tempered by later reports which revealed that General Graziani's front-line, so far as it is definitely consolidated, remains only at Goralah.

Fighting between Italian Askaris and Ethiopians has recently taken place at Grahehor, 80 miles south of Saasabanch, which city, together with Dagga-hur, the Abyssinians abandoned after being heavily bombed. — Reuter.

MOVE TOWARDS A FRANCO-GERMAN RAPPROCHEMENT

Committee Formed In Paris

CULTURAL RELATIONS TO BE STUDIED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.

A Franco-German "Committee of Studies," comprising a number of prominent French personalities and corresponding to the similar German-French committee recently formed in Berlin, was formed here, according to the Petit Journal, in the course of a meeting held on the occasion of a visit to Paris of the German Professor Abiz, to whose persevering efforts in the cause of Franco-German understanding the paper pays a high tribute.

Among those present at the meeting the paper mentions the well-known authority on Germany, Professor Kurt Lich. — (Continued on Page 20)

Bega Made Captive

By C. T. Stoneham

ANY evening on Ol Deroto you may hear the song of the colobus. A low throbbing sound, it goes rolling across the forested hills, sonorous, harmonious with its wild setting: the "thunder of lyres" from unseen musicians in the "ancient groves."

The bigger monkeys weighed thirty or forty pounds; they had black velvety coats, over which they wore cloaks of long white fur. Their tails were white and bushy, like Persian cats', but finer and longer. They were the world's finest trapeze artists.

Bega, the leader, must allow not only for the weight of his heaviest follower, but for the females who carried their young on their backs, holding with tiny clutching hands to their mothers' neck fur, gazing fearlessly at the abyss. All trusted Bega, the leader; he made no mistakes. Yet in his youth he had made one mistake which cost him his liberty.

Storm Threat

One afternoon a great ice storm came down upon the mountains. It made its appearance as a small, copper-coloured cloud high in the sky; it approached, spread, grew huge and menacing, and at last covered the heavens. The light of high day became dim, unearthly; the beasts cowered afraid in the thickets. The trees moaned and thrashed in the rocking wind of alternate gust and calm.

Then came the hail, lashing the forest with icy pellets rattling like shot on the iron-hard bark of m'harangi and teak. For an hour it lasted, then the coppery cloud passed on and the sun shone out.

Stephen Wroth, accompanied by his dog Dan, left his home to witness the effects of the storm. They walked along the trail under the monkeys' roasts, and, as they approached, the leader of the troop rose and uttered a bark of warning. He led the way along a limb and leapt to that of another tree.

One by one the rest of the troop followed, until it was Bega's turn. He was stiff and numb; he jumped, but struck the bough unevenly, scrambled for a moment and fell into the bushes far below.

His Downfall

Wroth had to stop to admire the flying monkeys. He saw with astonishment the downfall of one of their number. So did Dan, but in his case astonishment quickly gave place to activity; he dashed into the bushes to kill Bega.

Bega, with shoulder dislocated, ran out into the path to reclaim the tree, but the dog overhauled him and caught him by the scruff of the neck. Wroth was in time to rescue him from greater injury.

The monkey was installed in Wroth's house as a pet. His shoulder was replaced, he was forcibly fed with bread and milk. At first Bega was terrified, but after some days of kind treatment he grew inured to captivity. His shoulder healed, he fed himself, and was even playful with his master and the Swahili cook, who brought him dainties from the kitchen. But at evening he would sit among the rafters listening to the song of his wild brethren in the woods, and then his quick, bright eyes were fixed on an inner vision, and he would not respond to the overtures of his captors.

Wroth knew that the monkey was pining for the free life of the forest; that he wanted to leap and scamper through the green silence of the great trees, or drowse in the noon-day heat by the murmuring brook; this house-life was not for him. He promised that one day he would free the captive, but as the little animal grew more friendly and its ways more engaging the man postponed the hour of parting.

Bega was an interesting pet. He would descend to perch on Wroth's shoulder while he ate his dinner; he had a fondness for carrying articles aloft to his perch among the rafters and there examining them, and often he threw them down upon the heads of people below. Salim, the cook, received the contents of a bottle of Worcester sauce, and Wroth had a bruise on his forehead where a dropped plate had struck him.

Salim encouraged the monkey in these antics; he would throw things up to him for the fun of seeing them thrown back. Everyone liked Bega, except Nyoka, the herd-boy.

Nyoka was half a Kipsigis, but he would not live with that warlike people because they made game of the Kikuyu strain in him. He preferred to dwell with his mother's people, where he could boast his fighting blood without fear of ridicule.

Why The Spear?
The day after Bega's capture, Nyoka came to see the animal. He cried, "Hodi?" outside the house, and Wroth replied with the customary "Karibu!" giving him leave to enter. Nyoka pushed open the screen door and came into the room, his spear in his hand.

Bega sat on the table, scowling, terrified at the intruder. For a long moment Nyoka looked at him. "His skin is worth ten shillings," he said. "Had I a gun I would hunt these beasts in the forest and make much money."

"Why do you come into my house with a spear?" demanded Wroth.

"I had it with me to guard the cattle."

"Even the Masai do not enter houses spear in hand."

"I am not a Masai," said Nyoka sullenly.

"Neither are you Kipsigis, though you have a share of the Kipsigis impudence," said Wroth.

Nyoka went out. From that moment he hated Wroth, and the monkey who had brought this slight upon him. The next day he took his wages and departed to the township.

After a time Nyoka gained employment with a settler, but there was an error in his discharge sheet, and he was directed to return to his former employer to have this rectified. He arrived at Wroth's house one afternoon when no one was about.

Bega sat in the rafters of the stoop, Nyoka stood looking up at him, thinking how much he would like to kill the monkey and take its skin. He put up his spear and poked Bega in the ribs with the butt of it. The monkey clutched the weapon and tried to pull it from the man's grasp, chattering and scolding the while. Nyoka was amused. He wedged Bega against the thatch and pressed on the spear-haft until the animal squealed with pain and fright.

Meditation
Wroth came round the corner of the house. Without hesitation, he struck Nyoka on the jaw, knocking him prone in the dust. The man lay there, staring at the white man with dazed eyes.

"Get off my property," said Wroth. "If I catch you here again, I will thrash you within an inch of your life."

Nyoka did not run, as a Kikuyu would have done; he walked away slowly, and his eyes were directed to the rifle in Wroth's hand.

He went down to the river, and there in a secluded spot he sat down to consider his wrongs.

That night when the moon was up and all were asleep Nyoka stole through the bush to Wroth's house. Dan, sleeping on the stoop, did not hear him, which was fortunate for Dan. He pushed open the screen door and entered.

Bega sat on his perch in the roof-top, Wroth lay on the bed in the farther corner, breathing peacefully. Nyoka stood by the table, looking about him.

The presence of danger awoke the sleeping man. "Who is there?" he called.

"It is I," said Nyoka, "and again I have brought my spear."

He marked the rifle, leaning against the wall, and moved to cover it.

Wroth knew himself in deadly peril. He lay watching the intruder, wondering if he could stop the first swift thrust with his pillow, and grapple with the man. It was a slender chance, for the Kipsigis were expert with weapons, and Nyoka had been reared among them.

The native took a step nearer, and swung back his spear-arm. Wroth expected a succession of feints, a stamping, and a loud "Hargh!" which would accompany the blow.

His Trophies
Bega was not asleep. That evening he had purloined two articles from the dinner-table and

"OVERLOADED HIS BRAIN"

Man's Insulting Behaviour

PLEADINGS IN COURT

London.
"He has overloaded his brain. He has won scholarships, and the headmaster of his school states that he knows more than he does himself."

These remarks were made by a witness at Wimbledon Police Court recently when speaking on behalf of his nephew, Albert Alexander Spring, aged 29, a billman, of Queen's-road, Wimbledon, who was charged on remand with using insulting behaviour at Wimbledon Hill-road.

P.-c. Cotton said that Spring placed his hand on the shoulder of a woman in an attempt to embrace her. He said, "I am just doing this for fun."

Detective Randall said that they had about ten complaints of Spring's behaviour that night. Several women came into the police station, and others telephoned from police boxes.

Letter To Bench
Detective Randall said that he had known Spring for a number of years. He was normal up to five or six years ago, but since then he had been in a mental hospital four or five times.

Mr. C. W. Gregory, Spring's uncle, handed a letter to the Bench, and said he was prepared to carry out the suggestion contained in it. This suggestion was not made public.

On Mr. Gregory's undertaking Spring was discharged.

THIEVES DID THE "LIFTING"

Ingenious Trick In France

A valuable wireless set has been stolen through a novel trick in Nice.

A woman's votes over the telephone ordered two wireless sets to be sent to her address at once. She was anxious, she said, to choose a wedding present.

On arriving in his car, the salesman found that the woman's flat was on the fifth floor—and there was no lift.

Blank Look
So leaving one set in his car, he tolled up the stairs carrying the other. When at length he reached the fifth floor, the woman who answered his knock looked at him blankly.

"I don't understand," she said. "No one here has ordered a wireless. My husband hates the things."

The salesman put down the set he was carrying and dashed downstairs. His fears were justified—the other set had vanished.—Reuter.

WORLD'S OLDEST WOMAN

Claims To Be 160 Years Old

The title of the World's Oldest Woman is claimed by an Indian woman living in the remote village of Bir Ramchandrapur, Orissa, North-East India.

blouse. All these outfits would look well worn with a plainly-tailored topcoat in a toning shade. Next come your evening clothes. Have a long evening skirt in velvet, maroon or a thick-ribbed crepe, and you can wear it with a blouse or jumper in lame.

Clothes For The Duchess Of Gloucester

COUNTRY clothes and sports wear are playing a great part in the trousseau of the Duchess of Gloucester because she loves the country, and since she has a passion for scarves—and possesses a positive collection of them—a good many are included. Hand-knitted jumpers, usually open at the neck, are another important item, for the future bride wears these or shirt-blossoms in the country.

Another of her accessories which are characteristic of Lady Alice are her shoes. She very rarely wears really high heels, except for evenings and on those occasions when she must wear formal afternoon clothes, and her shoes are invariably plain and beautifully cut. Off The Forehead In Scotland Lady Alice very often goes without a hat at all, letting the wind play with her brown hair, but occasionally she will put on a beret at a slight tilt. Many of her hats for town or country wear, however, are cut on the off-the-forehead lines which are to be seen in some of her photographs.

The fact that Lady Alice has insisted that all the materials for the lingerie in her trousseau should be of British materials has resulted in some of our famous manufacturers of silk weaving some of their loveliest pure silk fabrics for her.

An exquisite shade of pastel peach is one of Lady Alice's favourite colours, and she will have garments in this made in chiffon, in crepe Suzette, and the finest crepes-de-Chine.

Meat Dishes Which Will Keep Freshness

ONE would not make a broiled steak await the uncertain return of a golfing spouse, or try to keep chops in the pink of perfection until the boys come home from a double-innings game. But there are meat dishes which will wait and not grow and in the waiting; meat dishes that may cook a little longer without losing their pristine freshness.

remove it from the fire add two beaten egg yolks to it. Pour this sauce over the chops and sprinkle liberally with grated cheese. Place in a slow oven until thoroughly heated through.

FRUIT COMBINATIONS THAT TAKE PLACE OF PUDDINGS

WHILE rich hot puddings are still taking a vacation from our daily menu, let us consider the possible fruit combinations that are taking their place this Autumn.

The sweet and bland fruits can be combined with the juicy and tart fruits in a great variety of ways. Berries added to apples, peaches or pears make a variety when stewed these fruits. Bananas put through a sieve and added to an orange, lemon, or pineapple sherbet, give a smoother dessert with a popular flavour. When serving a fresh fruit platter combine the bland with the tart fruits.

Another interesting change, when serving stewed fruits, is to stew the various colours of the same kind of fruit together. Plums offer the greatest possibility for this, since you can use the green, yellow, red and purple plums. You can use the yellow and the white cling peaches in combination also. When preparing the stewed fruit in this way, drop the prepared fruit into a boiling syrup made with equal parts of sugar and water. The fruit will then hold its shape.

THE TECHNIQUE OF BEING A MOTHER

THE technique of being a mother brings the greatest rewards of all. We all know and envy those young, vital mothers for whose love children, husband and friends all compete. These are the women with the perfect technique of motherhood.

First of all, don't ever think you own your children; even a two-year-old has a right to his own ideas! Be a pal, too; not a home edition of "teacher." When they grow up try not to be shocked at anything they do or say—particularly say. Remember what your parents thought of your goings on. Above all, never say "don't"—you can surely be more subtle than that!

BEAUTY DIARY

By ESTHER

YOUR HAIR DECIDES YOUR "TYPE"

IT is rather fun, for a change, letting nature take a hand at improving on herself. But she has her failures, notably with black or really dark hair which, during a hot summer, often loses its sable sheen and goes patchy and dull.

There is only one thing for black-haired beauty to do when she returns from vacation—to treat her hair and scalp to a rich diet of oil.

New Way With Oil

A short course of steam and oil treatment will put her hair into trim for the winter, and if she is thinking of a new permanent wave round about October, an oil treatment is essential. The old-fashioned hot towel method of opening the pores is no longer used in the best saloons. Controlled steam is the system of to-day, and very good it is.

The machine is rather like a drier with holes in the sides through which the assistant can massage the client's head. When the pores are opened by the steam heat, an oily lotion is massaged in by hand. The pores having drunk in their dose of lubrication, the steam is turned at half-heat, and when the scalp has cooled down sufficiently the hair is shampooed in the usual way.

Six twice-weekly treatments should be sufficient to remedy the after-effects of salt water and drying winds. Having discovered to your delight that your hair, which you look upon as just ordinary mid-brown or still more rudely as just plain mouse, has taken on some charming high lights during this sun-drenched summer, I am sure you will want to keep them.

A great deal can be done to improve those golden glints without having to use a dye. For a month after your return from your holiday, try out this weekly treatment.

Rinse With Egg

Massage the scalp with warm almond oil and leave it to soak in for an hour. Shampoo with a soapless shampoo. These shampoos will help to keep your hair soft and supple, and are easy to use. Next use a brightening rinse. If you prefer something home-made, use an egg-and-distilled-water rinse. Beat up an egg in a cupful of warm water. After rinsing the hair free of shampoo, pour the egg mixture over the scalp and work it well in with the tips of the fingers. Rinse, first in warm then in cold water, keeping the distilled water rinse to the last.

While the hair is still wet, brush in just a little of one of those special brilliancines for fair hair. Dry your hair by hand if you have the time.

Auburn hair looks its most glorious in the sun. And somehow the red head seems to thrive in hot weather. So you red-headed ones should make the most of summer days. Let your hair be free to the sun and wind, but protect it always against salt water.

little tricks.

To caramelize sugar. Spread the sugar in a thin layer over the surface of a frying pan. Place over very low heat and let stand without stirring until a rich brown liquid has formed. Stir caramelized sugar cautiously into liquids; the hardened mass which forms will dissolve eventually in the hot liquid.

Bacon for boiling will have a better flavour if a dessertspoonful of vinegar is added to the water. New potatoes will clean much more easily if they are put into a bowl of hot water to which a little ordinary washing soda has been added.

Walnut sauce for fish can be made in the following way:—Cream 3 oz. butter, adding lemon juice. Beat into this mixture four tablespoonfuls of finely chopped pickled walnuts and one of chopped parsley if desired. Heat before using.

Almond pastry, made by adding some ground almonds and caster sugar to any left-over pastry dough, is a good way of using up these oddments to make fancy biscuits for afternoon tea. Roll out, cut into beaten egg, dredge with sugar, and bake. If liked the biscuits can be sandwiched together, with a little almond paste and jam between each.

Cheese wafers make a popular savoury. Grate half a tencupful of cheese, and add a little made mustard, sugar and salt, and a dash of cayenne. Make into a paste with cream or milk, and spread thinly on unsweetened wafers. Put into the oven for about 15 minutes. Serve very hot.

Black silk garments which are beginning to look shabby may be renovated by sponging with clear, strong coffee and ironing on the wrong side.

SEVEN GOALS IN THE SECOND HALF

SAINTS LEAD 2-0 THEN LOSE 7 TO 2

ROSE SCORES FOUR FOR NAVY

AFTER a strenuous and spirited game in their premier division soccer encounter, the Navy trounced St. Joseph's on the Navy ground, Causeway Bay, by 7 goals to 2 yesterday.

The Navy, after being two goals down at the end of the first half, rallied in an astonishing manner during the latter half, displaying brilliant football from every angle, and went on to score their seven well-merited goals in twenty-five minutes; Rose, the Navy inside-right, being responsible for four.

"HAT TRICK" FOR LEE WAI TONG AGAINST K.F.C.

Mainlanders Concede Five Goals

SOUTH CHINA'S ATTACK STRENGTHENED

South China "A" took two very easy points from Kowloon at Caroline Hill yesterday, when in their premier League soccer encounter they won an uninteresting game by five goals without reply.

Lee Wai-tong secured another 'hat-trick' and with the forward line considerably strengthened by the inclusion of Tam Kong-pak at inside-left, there is little doubt that South China could have doubled their score had they exerted themselves.

Kowloon played hard right up to the final whistle, and came quite near to scoring on occasions, but their kick-and-rush methods and poor ball control proved unavailing against the accurate teamwork of South China.

After 7 minutes South China notched their first point, Tay sending Lee Wai-tong through to place the ball well-out of 'Boys' reach.

G. White raised Kowloon's hopes shortly afterwards with a quick burst through the centre, but his final shot travelled wide.

Lee's Second Goal

A loose ball near the half-way line was snapped up by Lee Wai-tong, and he found the net with three Kowloon players vainly attempting to prevent him from shooting!

FUSILIERS BEATEN

Unbeaten Record Lost To Navy

The Fusiliers lost their unbeaten record when they were defeated by the Navy in their Second Division soccer encounter on the Navy ground, Causeway Bay, yesterday, the Navy emerging the victors by two clear goals.

Although the game was keenly fought, the soldiers were given little opportunity for scoring, the sailors' defence in Robinson and Hills being absolutely impregnable. From a good pass from Hinder on the left wing Gould opened the scoring with a good shot, and then, following a weak clearance by Gintley, Wride, the Navy inside-left netted with a long shot, Saunders being unopposed.

MEDICALS TOO GOOD FOR LIGA

Marked Superiority

The R.A.M.C. easily won their Third Division soccer match against Liga Portuguesa at King's Park yesterday afternoon, notching four goals with reply. The superiority of the Army team was noticeable throughout, and but for the magnificent goalkeeping by Quinn in the Liga goal they would have scored more often.

Two goals were scored in each half, W. Wright and McHale not counting for the first two, and Snook and McHale for those after the interval.

Ian Hong-pak above, the brilliant South China "A" footballer, made a welcome return to the front line against Kowloon yesterday.

RECREIO LOSE AT HOME BY THE ODD GOAL

Club Deserved The Points

FERNANDES SAVES PENALTY

The Club de Recreio suffered a reverse yesterday afternoon when they lost to the Club by 3 goals to 2 in their First Division soccer match at King's Park. The main feature of the game was a very tame first half and an extremely exciting second half. Recreio was unable to play in goal for Fernandes and was deputised by Fernandes.

The first half was one of the tamest affairs that could be imagined, with the Recreio slightly the faster of two apparently tired teams.

An excellent movement between Gossau and Gomes led to the Recreio taking the lead after 20 minutes. Delgado, who was waiting in an unmarked position, took Gossau's pass and gave Rodger no chance with his shot from close quarters.

Two minutes after the interval, Delgado netted, but was ruled off-side.

Club Equalise

The Club equaliser came through E. Strang, who beat Fernandes with a hard rising shot from a beautiful pass by Fowler.

This goal set the game in motion and many exciting incidents were then witnessed.

The Recreio goal had a number of narrow escapes when shots from Bickford, Forrow and E. Strang came very close.

Bowen brought Fowler down in the area, but from the spot kick, taken by Forrow, Fernandes saved.

Elliot, however, sent the Club ahead when he intercepted a fine pass from Fowler and shot hard into the top of the net.

SAPPERS BEATEN BY LINCOLNS

Turner Scores Twice

The Lincolns thoroughly deserved their Second Division soccer victory over the Sappers, for not only did they last better, but they played better football.

The game opened with the exchanges fairly even, but a run down the wing by English and a well placed centre enabled the Lincolns to take the lead through Turner after six minutes. As if fired by the reverse the Sappers equalised within three minutes through Howlett after a shot by Darby had hit the bar.

A quick movement down the right by English in the second half and a pass across to the opposite wing to Stone enabled the latter to draw the defence and tap the ball to Turner, who scored. English then tested the goal-keeper with a soft shot, and the ball went over his head into the net for the Lincolns' third goal.

The Eastern gained two needed points on the Railway ground yesterday when they defeated the Radio in their Second Division soccer encounter by the only goal of the match.

EASTERN BEAT RADIO

Lone Goal By Sabhan Decides Dull Match

The Eastern gained two needed points on the Railway ground yesterday when they defeated the Radio in their Second Division soccer encounter by the only goal of the match.

A penalty was awarded against H. U. Sousa, but Sui Ping-shui misjudged his shot and hit the upright. Later in the game, H. U. Sousa again offended and was cautioned by the referee.

Apart from the repeated infringements there were flashes of good play, Sabhan being undoubtedly the outstanding player on the field, but Bux kept a close guard on him and he had little chance to do much.

The only goal of the game was scored mid-way through the first half. Lee Bing Tong took a corner and Sabhan connected with his head to find the net.

SOUTH CHINA SCORE FIVE TIMES

Kowloon Drop Points At Caroline Hill

South China gained a comfortable victory in their Second Division soccer encounter against Kowloon at Caroline Hill yesterday, quickly establishing their superiority to emerge clear-cut winners by 5 goals to 1.

After several quick raids and narrow escapes, the Kowloon goal fell to a quick shot by Chan Tak-fai, and shortly afterwards the same player placed South China two up with a fast ground shot from 8 yards.

Shortly before the interval Kowloon broke away, and, although Wong Wah-kai held the ball, he dropped it under pressure by Winch and Pereira, and Honnball cleverly lobbed it into the empty net.

The second half saw South China well on top, and after Minihmet had saved from Li Paulung, a terrific first-time drive by Li Wing-on placed the Chinese three up.

Continuing to press heavily, South China brought their total to five through Ip Yun-po, who scored two quick goals shortly before the final whistle.

The Lincolns thoroughly deserved their Second Division soccer victory over the Sappers, for not only did they last better, but they played better football.

The game opened with the exchanges fairly even, but a run down the wing by English and a well placed centre enabled the Lincolns to take the lead through Turner after six minutes. ### ATHLETIC TOO GOOD FOR R.A. STONECUTTERS

Game Lacks Interest After Interval

CHINESE OPEN BRILLIANTLY THEN SLACKEN OFF

The Chinese Athletic seniors gained a comfortable win over the R.A. (Stonecutters) on the Soekunpo ground yesterday, defeating them by four goals to nil.

The game did not produce much good football, over-enthusiasm and bad finishing spoiling many opportunities for both sides.

During the opening stages the winners gave quite a delightful exhibition of free and open play, but as the game progressed, they slackened their pace considerably, with the result that all interest was taken from the game.

Yeung Kan-po opened the scoring when he worked his way through the centre to beat Hall with a fast rising shot.

The opening of the second half saw the Athletic on the attack again, and, following a tussle just outside the Gunners' area, the Athletic were awarded a free kick.

Ho Chor-yin, who took the kick, placed ball in the goalmouth and in the scrimmage that followed Chow Man-chi hooked the ball into the corner of the net.

The Chinese increased their lead five minutes later through Li hung-ching, who headed in a splendid centre from the right, and the Athletic scored their fourth goal through Yeung Kan-po.

The Chinese well deserved their win, the Police being extremely lucky to score at all, the goal they secured being the result of a very doubtful penalty.

The ground was filled to capacity before the game started, many hundreds of Chinese being turned away.

The Chinese had most of the play during the first half, and Cheuk Shek-kam scored his team's first goal of the season after 15 minutes.

The Police were unable to equalise until five minutes from the end of the game, and they did so in a very unsatisfactory manner. Stephens handled the ball in the Chinese area and, after consultation with the linesman, who was waving his flag, the referee awarded a penalty against the Chinese. Moss took the spot kick and made no mistake.

Three minutes later, however, Cheuk Shek-kam centred across the goal, Chris Pile missed the ball and Lee shek-yau, scored the winning goal from a yard out.

SOUTH CHINA "B'S" FIRST WIN

LINCOLNS SURPRISED BY FUSILIERS

CLUB DEFEAT RECREIO

THE outstanding feature of yesterday's League soccer programme were the number of penalties — almost one in every First Division game — that were missed, and South China "B's" first victory in the First Division, when they lowered the colours of the Police for the first time this season by scoring a winning goal three minutes from time, in spite of an equalising goal by the Police from a doubtful penalty two minutes earlier.

Tms Lincolns were surprised by the Fusiliers, who forced them to a draw after being led in the opening half by two clear goals, while the Club caused a minor upset by beating the Recreio at King's Park by the odd goal. But the biggest shock was registered at Causeway Bay, where the Saints were overwhelmed by 7 goals to 2 after leading by two goals at the interval. The champions continued in winning form by trouncing Kowloon.

Happiness Is For The Seeking Life Not Necessarily Sad And Gloomy Secret Of Happiness Is Within Ourselves

(By JOHN COWPER POWYS)

WHAT are the reasons why so few human beings dare deliberately, even to themselves, make their personal happiness the main purpose of their lives?

The cause of so many vague feelings of unhappiness, apart from acute physical distress, is almost always the pressure upon us of some mental worry, or nervous depression, or what one might describe as "the illusion of the commonplace."

Shake off the pessimistic assumption that to be unhappy is inevitable. To encounter such evil and oppressive moments is certainly inevitable. But it is no cause for crying "Just my luck!" or for sighing "Pity poor me again!" It is the fortune of war. It is one of the terms on which we wrestle with this chaotic world.

Psychic Influence

There are two ways in which the magic of life can be brought low. It can be beaten down from outside by brutal tyranny; and it can be weakened at the root by this soft and melancholy worm of self-malice.

There is no doubt that psychic vibrations of some kind emanate from all our moods. Not even the most rigid materialist can gainsay this. And when a person allows himself to be unhappy day after day and year after year, what he is really doing is helping the spirit of evil.

What is not sufficiently realised is that the whole drama of life goes on in individual minds, and is independent of outward actions and outward events. Our life is lived in a mental world whereof the material background is for ever changing according to the mood of the individual mind.

Mother And Daughter

Escape, escape, escape! That is what every woman should aim at. Escape from her man, from her children, from her friends, and above all from her parents. Not necessarily by running away—though she always has that as a last resource—but escape, by a thousand crafty wiles of her mother-wit. The enchanted state of being-in-love is in itself a super-escape.

A girl is happier living with almost any man who does not get drunk and beat her than with the best of mothers. There is a deep and sinister mystery about the relation between a mother and a daughter. One feels as if there were something evil, some subtle outrage to Nature, about their living together at all.

A girl would be always wise to choose to live next door to her man's mother rather than under the same roof with her own, for it is better to quarrel openly and flagrantly than to be covertly and unconsciously vampirised at the very root of your identity.

The Happy Woman

To be profoundly happy according to Nature's intention, a woman has to feel—how shall I put it?—as if the furniture of her room were in love with her, as if all the walls and floors were enamoured of her, as if the very candle on her table "bowed towards her," as the poet says, to "under-peek her eyelids," who has to feel as if the sunlight on her window-sill were her lover, as if the rain on the roof were her suitor, as if the wind in the chimney were sighing to caress her.

You are digestion-conscious, and money-conscious, and vanity-conscious; but you refuse to be Life-conscious.

You are always aiming at the wrong thing—you aim at getting rid of worry by worrying, and at getting rid of the futility sense by plunging into more futility; whereas if you get into the habit of imagining yourself actually dead—as at any second you may be—you will acquire that secret irresponsibility which is the diving-board of all living joy.

"Practical" People

What are called practical people—and dumb idiots they mostly are—have a way of assuring us that if we worked a little harder we shouldn't have time to worry. Yes, and we shouldn't have time to live either! The Lord deliver us from the oracles of practical people!

A wise man or a wise woman is the person who, if work is tiring—and all work grows tiring sometimes—calls to mind the few really relaxed moments that fate allows, the cup of tea, the cup of coffee, the glass of beer, the seat by the fire, the bench in the sun, and, above all, the incredible relief of pulling the sheet under the chin when the head sinks on the pillow. For, when you really think of it, the moments in all our lives when, in the midst of our work, we suddenly get one of those unaccountable thrills of happiness that seem to arise for no reason at all, are the moments that make life worth living.

Happiness From Within

Pleasure can come and go at random and by chance, for it depends on outward things; but happiness does not depend on outward things. It is born of the mind, it is nourished by the mind, it is what rises, like breath in a frosty air, from the mind's wrestling with its fate.

Not in what we possess, not in what we achieve, not in the opinion of others, not in hope, not in admiration, not in love, not in anything below or above the sun is the secret of happiness to be found. It is only to be found in ourselves.

ALL SAINTS' DAY THE BELOVED OF GOD WHO HAVE PASSED SAINTHOOD A REFLECTION OF CHRIST'S ATTRIBUTES

(By Rev. J. N. LEWIS BRYAN)

FRIDAY of last week was All Saints' Day. To many people it means nothing, but to many others it is of great importance, because on that day we remember that countless multitude, whose names may not be written in the books of history, but are very definitely written in the books of God.

The idea of what constitutes a Saint has become sadly distorted in people's minds. Legends and tales of miracles have been busy about them, clothing them with supernatural powers, and ascribing extraordinary achievements to them. Stained-glass windows depict them as most unusual-looking people, the kind we never see in real life. They wear quite impossible and most uncomfortable clothes; their heads are adorned with haloes and crowns and in their hands they carry glistening keys, or swords; sometimes they are even seen clasping whole churches in their arms; until we have come to think of them as a race apart, lifted high above the ordinary humdrum life we usually lead.

The Early Saints
But in the New Testament a Saint meant nothing more than an ordinary everyday Christian, a humble follower of Our Lord, and not by any means a very perfect one at that. St. Paul wrote directly to "the Saints of the Church at Corinth." It was the most unpleasant letter he ever wrote, in which he spoke his mind in no uncertain way.

They were divided into little squabbling sects, the air was full of litigation and lawsuits and what was worse, they were washing their dirty linen in the hallowed law courts. Christians were taking part in heathen functions; there was even flagrant immorality. Yet he calls these people "Saints," and does so with a clear knowledge of their sins. The name therefore was applied to all Christians, good, bad and indifferent.

They are called Saints because the name expresses an ideal rather than a fact. The Christian Faith has always persisted in seeing men and women not as they actually are, but as what they may become. It has always seen greater possibilities of goodness in them than they can see in themselves; it has always refused to accept their present condition as being the whole truth about them; it has never failed to tell them that, however far off they may actually be from holiness of living, they have none the less been called to be Saints.

Potential Saints
The great secret of Christianity has been that it has never despaired of anyone. It has always taught that men and women are made in the image of God, so that that image, however much defaced or overlaid, is yet always there and capable of being restored.

It is this way of looking at people which constitutes the genius of the Christian religion. It is a religion of redemption and must, therefore, of necessity be a religion of optimism. You can only redeem people out of their sins by first setting them to believe in the possibility of goodness. That is why Christianity has always called people "Saints" without first waiting for them actually to become so. It has preserved the minds and methods of its Founder, who treated sinners as potential saints. And, being called to be Saints, in the end they became so. Treated as sinners, they would no doubt have remained sinners to the end.

So we must be grateful to All Saints Day, because it brings these truths back to our minds. On that day we do not think of gilded Saints of legend and stained-glass windows, but rather of a great number of simple, homely, inconspicuous folk, quite undistinguished and totally unheroic, and pray that we may be like them in their simple virtues.

True Sainthood
We know so well in our own minds what we mean by a saint. When we say that so-and-so is a real saint, we are thinking of someone who will do anything for you; who is always saying, "Let me do it," and never seems to be too tired to undertake one job more; someone who keeps a smiling face and is cheery when everybody else is depressed; someone who, when things go wrong and tempers get frayed, just goes quietly along, untroubled, patient, good-tempered; someone who is always sympathetic and large-hearted; always sees the best in everybody and is never known to say unkind things about others; someone who habitually takes a back seat, hates to be thanked, and whose left hand never knows what his right is doing.

And nearly always you will find that he has someone in tow—a lame dog being helped over a stile; a boy or a girl who is in danger of going wrong, a bed-ridden invalid, or some lonely or friendless person, who is being visited, looked after, cheered up and helped. Yes, we know the type! We find them everywhere, very often in our own homes. There are few of us who do not number some amongst our acquaintances.

Reflection Of Christ
How much we owe to them!

THE PASSING HOUR
It is perhaps only the older generation that gets excited over an election. The average representative of the 20,000,000 electors who recorded their votes last week were no doubt content to sit round the fire with pipe or cigarette or novel in hand, and listen to the party leaders who were allowed by the B.B.C. to use the microphone. If he had the misfortune to be dull, the novel would be taken up again till that particular "turn" was ended. And the actual recording of a vote has nothing exciting about it either; it need not take more than five minutes. From the severely rational point of view there is much to be said for the abolition of the infectious enthusiasm of the crowded meeting and the seductions of the pretty canvasser,—though canvassing had long become a mere survival of a useless waste of time, since 50 per cent. of the canvassed protected their right to the secret ballot by promising "their vote and influence" to all the parties indifferently.

THE SPORT OF CONTEST
NOTWITHSTANDING there was of ten a lot of fun in the older methods, which did bring the candidate into a much more personal contact with his constituency. I would not for worlds have missed the fun of one election in which both candidates were millionaires. The "Corrupt Practices at Elections Act", which limited the maximum expenditure in a ratio to the number of voters, was already in force, and the fear of an "election petition" which would unseat the man who got most votes, made everyone very careful to avoid even the most harmless hospitality of a personal character. But in that constituency, which included the stable boys and bookies of Newmarket, it was recognised by both candidates that the ordinary political appeals would fall very flat. I had known the Liberal candidate, Sir George Newnes, founder and proprietor of Ti-bits, from boyhood, and he happened to meet me one day in the Strand and ask me if I would go down to East Cambridgeshire and take charge of one of his offices for the polling day. The invitation being backed with a generous fee per diem, I accepted for a week without any unnecessary hauteur. The opponent was Sir Charles Rose, whose name still confronts us on the bottles of Lime Juice Cordial that contribute to our "Glimlets". Both candidates had four-in-hands to drive about, with the boot loaded with baskets of champagne bottles to ease the strain on the larynx of addressing small village meetings at some length—or assisting as silent listeners. It was confided to me that so long as there was no actual bribery, it had been agreed that there would be no election petition merely on the ground of expense.

THE POLITICAL APPEAL OF SHOWMANSHIP
THEN the fun began. Sir George hired a circus, with merry-go-rounds. Sir Charles replied that he had four-in-hands to drive about, with the boot loaded with baskets of champagne bottles to ease the strain on the larynx of addressing small village meetings at some length—or assisting as silent listeners. It was confided to me that so long as there was no actual bribery, it had been agreed that there would be no election petition merely on the ground of expense.

THE END WAS PEACE
SUDDENLY, at 8 p.m. there was the peace of paradise, the polling stations were closed, and the crowd faded away to mollify the larynx and surround the Town Hall in patient expectation of the result. I collapsed into an arm-chair, oblivious of politics and everything else, and was still sitting there when the candidate arrived. That morning he had handed me a cheque for £50, bidding me cash it for "small disbursements." I explained that his Agent had already given me all that was necessary, but he left the cheque. I awoke from day-dreaming to find that he had come round to say good-bye. I rose and opened the drawer of the desk to show him the £50 in sovereigns half-crowns, and shillings, and began to count it out. "Oh! don't bother about that," he said. "It has all gone into the accounts as already spent. Put it in your pocket." I strolled over to my hotel heavily laden in pocket, but light of heart, pondering on the strange casualness with which Providence distributes wealth.

CHINESE CHORAL SOCIETY

Concert At The University

INTERESTING PROGRAMME FOR NEXT SATURDAY

The next concert of the Hong Kong Chinese Choral Society will be given on Saturday next at 9 p.m. in the Great Hall of the University (by kind permission of the Vice-Chancellor). The Choir have prepared a very interesting programme of Madrigals and part-songs. There will also be heard arrangements of folk songs, and composers old and new are represented. Mr. J. Anderson Miller, L.R.A.M., will conduct.

The choir will be assisted by Mrs. Anderson Miller (Soprano), Mrs. M. J. Arnold (Cello), Mr. Li Chor-chi (Tenor) and Dr. L. T. Ride (Baritone), while Lt.-Col. C. H. Kuhne will accompany. An interesting item will be the rendering of Chinese music by Mr. Yau Hok-chau and his Chinese instrumentalists. Mr. An Wai-man, a promising young pianist, will also contribute.

Anyone interested in choral music is urged to support this concert and encourage these Chinese singers in their keen desire to know and appreciate good music. Tickets at $2, $1 and 50 cents may be obtained from the Chinese Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. and the Tsang Fook Music Co.

During the evening there was no time for meetings, but neither did the prohibition against hospitality hold good—after all it was very useful for the voter to meet the statesmen personally and exchange views under the most agreeable circumstances. Two days before the poll one of Sir George's men came rushing in with the exciting news that there was to be a Conservative display of fireworks the night before the poll. Sir George immediately rushed off a telegram to Brock, ordering a much superior selection, to end up with a "scene" of the battle of Trafalgar. Brock wired that he regretted his oversight had been engaged by the other side. He was instructed to engage a temporary man at double rates.

POLLING DAY
THE actual day of battle was a nightmare. Canvassers would rush in to suggest that a dog-cart be sent for somebody who was a sound Liberal, but unfortunately afflicted with rheumatism, but one had to guess at all the details, for it was only rarely that one could hear a word. On one side was a steam merry-go-round fitted up with one tune which I shall never forget, "Sailing, sailing, over the bounding main". Sometimes in moments of extreme depression, I seem to hear it still. Outside the door was a brass band with a somewhat larger repertoire, but a distinct deficiency of one or two notes in the trombone. Rival crowds every now and then created a blur in my memory by joining in the row—but whether they were cheering or booing or joining in a chorus it was impossible to tell.

THE END WAS PEACE
SUDDENLY, at 8 p.m. there was the peace of paradise, the polling stations were closed, and the crowd faded away to mollify the larynx and surround the Town Hall in patient expectation of the result. ### Nerves were in a Terrible Way — 'ASPRO's Surprise

1 Garden Street, Middle Brighton, S.S.
15/12/32
Dear Sirs,
Last week I had 18 teeth out, and not being well my nerves were in a terrible way; in fact, I had to be taken home from the dentist. I went on for a couple of days in terrible pain with my head and eyes, due to my nerves, so I had to go to a doctor. On my way home I bought a packet of 'ASPRO'. I took three and laid down, and to my surprise I woke up feeling lovely. Now, if I feel a slight headache at all I fly to my 'ASPRO'. I think 'ASPRO' should be in every home. I could mention a few more facts where 'ASPRO' has done good in my home. Once tried, always used.
Yours faithfully,

Take heart, fair lady. There is such a face powder, called MARVELOUS. This powder clings as you've always wanted powder to cling—and never thought it could. Marvelous, indeed, is a different kind of powder, a different blend, developed by the Richard Hudnut laboratories after years of searching for a new, longer-clinging powder.

The Marvelous blend contains a substance entirely new to face powder—with a remarkable power to cling to your skin. In a sense, it becomes part of your own skin texture.

Marvelous Face Powder, therefore, never looks powdery on your skin. It looks like a new, more freshly-tinted, softer complexion of your own! And think of it—this flattering effect remains from four to six hours. What's more, Marvelous stays on without clogging the pores.

CLUB REPEAT FORMER SUCCESS OVER NAVY XV

Fielden And Butcher
In Limelight

SCOTT'S GOOD PERFORMANCE
AT SCRUM-HALF

The Club fifteen repeated their previous success over the Navy yesterday at the Valley in a scrappy rugby game featured by patches of brilliance by Butcher and Fielden, of the Club, and Benson and Felcey, of the Navy, when they won by two goals and two tries (16 points) to two tries (6 points).

Butcher, the Club fly-half, was in great form and his cut-throughs at opportune moments often caught the Navy defence on the wrong foot. Scott, who played at scrum-half gave a very good account of himself and sent out excellent service from the base of the scrum.

One of the outstanding players, however, was Fielden, who deputised for McGilchrist. In addition to playing a great defensive game, he scored a brilliant try in the opening half and another good one in the second.

Too Closely Marked

Powell was very closely marked and could do little, although he scored in the first half. Robertson was again very safe in defence, while Munro rendered valuable assistance at centre three-quarter.

Waldeen was head and shoulders above all the other forwards and worked like a trojan throughout. Deane and Humphreys were also in the thick of things and worked hard in the loose, while Peers was very quick off the mark.

Felcey and Benson were the two most dangerous men among the Navy backs, although Warren also came in for his share of praise for his excellent defence.

Knox and Miers were not working so well together as in former games, particularly the former, who slung out some wild passes at times. King, Burrows, Prowse and Chapman were the pick of the forwards, King being very conspicuous in the loose.

The Club opened the scoring through Powell, Robertson converting, but not long after St. Clair Ford broke through to score wide, Benson falling with the kick. Midway through this half a fine movement among the backs saw Fielden break away to ground beneath the posts after an excellent run, Robertson again adding the points.

In the second half a breakaway by Butcher saw the latter send Fielden over for the latter's second try, Robertson failing with the kick. After a long period of mid-field play Felcey broke through on the left touchline to send Benson away, the latter transferring to St. Clair Ford, who scored in the corner. Warren failed to convert.

Just before the end Wilson snapped up the ball in the loose and went over, Robertson, however, failing to add the points.

Lt. Col. H. C. Harrison refereed and the teams were:

Club First XV:—L. G. Robertson (captain); L. J. A. Fielden, K. A. Munro, G. S. Wilson, C. J. Powe, A. H. R. Butcher, A. M. Scott, A. F. Walker, J. H. McInnes, E. P. Humphreys, S. H. Garrod, B. D. G. U. Barlow, W. E. Peers, M. S. Cammings and B. O'M. Deane.
Navy:—Lieut. Euman (Perseus), Lieut. Sea, Felcey (Rover), Lieut. St. Clair Ford (Orpheus), Surg. Lieut. Benson (Medway), Sto. Warren (Rover), Lieut. Miers (Rainbow), Lieut. Knox (Parthian), Lieut. Winter (Rainbow), Sig. Puddicombe (Tamar), Tel. King (Tamar), Lieut. Cooper (Perseus), A. B. Burrows (Parthian), Lieut. Kennedy (Folkestone), Lieut. Prowse (Rover) and Lieut. Chapman (Parthian).

CLUB "A" ROUTED BY ARMY

Six Forwards Put Up
Grand Display

TWO MEN INJURED

In a friendly rugby game at the Valley yesterday, the Army "A" fifteen swamped the Club "A" fifteen by two goals, a dropped goal and three tries (23 points) to a try (3 points).

The Army team were much too good for the Club, particularly in the back division, lack of speed by the civilian wing-threequarters being responsible for several opportunities going begging.

Lt. Metcalf and Lt. Rice-Evans

H.K. LADIES HELD TO DRAW BY "Y" LAST-MINUTE GOAL SAVES CHAMPIONS CHALLENGERS' SUPERIOR TEAM

A THRILLING display by both teams featured the opening game in the Caer Clark Cup series at King's Park yesterday, when the Hong Kong Ladies' seniors, holders of the trophy, held the "Y" Ladies to a draw, sharing four goals after being a goal in arrears until the very last minute of the game. The "Y" Ladies dominated play throughout with the exception of the latter stages of the second half, when the defence cracked up to allow the Hong Kong Ladies to score twice.

The "Y" were definitely the superior team, in combination, stickwork and passing. In the first half their forwards had the opposition nonplussed, particularly their right wing where Miss O. Dalziel gave a startling performance, quite in keeping with the promise of her earlier displays.

C.B.A. JUNIORS TROUTED

H.K. Ladies Win By
9 Goals To 1

At Sookunpoo yesterday the Hong Kong Ladies' Junior eleven beat the C.B.A. Ladies' second team by 9 goals to 1 in a friendly hockey encounter.

The Hong Kong Ladies' forward line combined very well, Mrs. Goldman and Miss H. Hance being outstanding.

For the losers Miss Wittchell and Miss Hirst, the backs, played well, and in their forward line Miss G. Lakeman was the only player who shone.

Mrs. Hannon, (4) Miss R. Smalley (3) and Miss V. Blackburn (2) scored for the Hong Kong Ladies, while Miss Woolley obtained the losers' goal.

"Y" JUNIORS LOSE TO C.B.S.

Depleted Team Beaten
By Four Goals

The many defeats the Central British Schoolgirls' hockey team have suffered at the hands of the "Y" Ladies' juniors, were avenged yesterday when the schoolgirls netted four goals without reply against nine opponents' on the C.B.A. ground.

Miss Knill, their coach, has evidently impressed upon them the value of passing quickly and accurately, for in this department they completely outshone their opponents. Miss V. Bradbury and Miss R. Ingram worked hard to stem the flow of goals, but lack of support made their efforts unavailing. Miss J. Lakeman and Miss A. Martin each scored twice.

Two Backs Injured
For the Club, Hynes and Loxham were the pick of the Club backs, but both were injured and left the field in the second half, when the Army took command of the game. Alera was good at back, while North-Lewis shone at scrum-half.

The Club did marvelously well in the second-half with only six forwards, heading excellently, while Chambers hooked brilliantly. Metcalf (two goals and a try), Evans (two tries and a dropped-goal) scored for the Army, while Hynes scored the only try for the Club.

Major McIntyre refereed and the teams were:

Army "A":—Fus. Freese; Fus. Watts, Lt. Rice-Evans, Fus. Jeffries and Lt. Metcalf (R. A.); Lt. Hamilton (R. E.) and Dmr. Evans (E. L.); Lt. Cpl. Bobb Capt. Ap-Rhys-Pryce, Lt. Cpl. Davies, Pte. Roach (R. A. M. C.), Bdr. Hall (R. A.), Fus. Watkins, Spr. Rumball (R. E.) and Spr. Cullinan (R. E.).

Club "A":—K. R. Alera; R. Goldman, A. B. Loxham, A. B. Lock, and H. F. Hopkins; Sub. Lt. North-Lewis and D. Hynes; A. B. Fisher, G. S. Chambers, A. B. Haynes, A. B. Parker, J. S. Dunnett, L. R. Andrews, B. Hynes and A. K. Forsyth.

The half-back line was the team's weakness in the initial half, as Miss E. Thomson, the pivot, was decidedly off form, although she showed an improvement during the second half. Miss P. McCaw, however, played exceedingly well throughout, her passing being very accurate.

Miss J. Adey proved a great disappointment. Her game yesterday lacked much of the dash and sparkle that characterised her previous displays, and was a poor contrast to her opposite, Miss J. Dalziel, who played splendidly. Miss A. Fowler and Miss M. Westcott kept up a continuous onslaught on the opposing defence, and Mrs. Lunson, the visitors' custodian, was allowed few minutes for reflection.

The "Y" left-wing, however, met stern opposition in Miss B. Hebling, who continually broke up their cleverly schemed movements.

Active Right Wing
The Hong Kong Ladies' strength lay in their right-wing where Miss M. Smalley and Miss F. March caused the Misses Dalziel quite a bit of worry. Mrs. Henry worked very hard throughout in the left-half position, and was unfortunate to receive a nasty knock on the hand midway through the second half.

Miss S. Dalziel was responsible for opening the score when she made a splendid solo effort in the first half. Gaining the ball in mid-field, she overcame spirited opposition before continuing to give Miss Adey the opportunity to open the score. The second goal the "Y" obtained also came as a result of Miss Dalziel's initiative. This time she passed to Miss A. Fowler, who netted. Miss M. Smalley scored the Hong Kong Ladies' two goals in the second half.

"Y" Ladies:—Miss W. George; Mrs. Reid and Miss P. McCaw; Mrs. Brown, Miss E. Thomson and Mrs. Henry; Miss O. Dalziel, Miss S. Dalziel, Miss J. Adey, Miss A. Fowler and Miss M. Westcott.
H.K. Ladies:—Mrs. Lunson; Miss E. Gray, Miss J. Smalley; Miss B. Hance, Mrs. M. Bell, Miss C. Ferguson; Miss F. March, Miss M. Smalley, Miss J. Dalziel, Miss B. Hebling and Mrs. W. Waddell.

EAST LANCES DRAW WITH H.K.S.R.A.

A thrilling and fast game of hockey was seen on the Marina ground yesterday when a team from the East Lances, shared four goals with the H.K.S.R.A. Lt. Garthwaite and Lt. Ravenhill netted for the H.K.S.R.A. in the first half, while Nolan and Owan scored for the East Lances.

When interviewed by the Sunday Herald, Mr. Hiu said that the silver policy adopted by the Nanking Government was an extremely useful one and in the existing state of world economics a very necessary measure. He was fully convinced that it was the only measure that could be taken by the Government.

Asked what he thought of the present political situation in the North, with particular emphasis on Sino-Japanese relations, Mr. Hiu was very non-committal and answered smilingly, "I think what every Chinese thinks."

Frontier Defence

It is with something of a shock that one realises that it should be necessary, or apparently necessary, to defend the frontier of the New Territories—something like the shock with which one realises that there has actually been a controversy among our Finance Committee, ending in a vote. The Police Stations at Sheung Shui and Au Tau are in lonely situations to which it must inevitably take some time to send relief, but of course the request for turrets does not arise from any fear of attack in force such as would call for the services of the Police Reserve or the soldiers. The mischief of guard or patrol work in the back of beyond is that all the advantages of surprise, whether in the time chosen or the conditions of a dark night, are on the side of the attack. The odds in favour are so enormous as to outweigh every other consideration, and make one man who can use a rifle the master of the situation.

The men who are employed on such duties have a good claim to every possible help that the law-abiding population can give them, and if a turret will enable the inmates of the stations to get out safely, and put themselves more on an equality with the bandit or bandits, there should be no question of economising on an item that will create a feeling of confidence, and assure the Police that they have the support and sympathy of those for whose benefit they are keeping watch. It is a question very largely of imagination. To ride out on a dark night with the knowledge that every bush shaken by the wind is a possible cover for an armed man intent on crime is a distinct strain, as everyone will acknowledge who has ever done sentry work or patrol work during war. It is not that there is any unwillingness to do duty. One of the extraordinary things is the fact that there is never any lack of volunteers for any sort of dangerous work. The point is that knowledge of the danger is continuous, however rare may be an actual encounter. A man who is suddenly attacked must have a cool nerve if he is to use the means of defence given to him, and if he can be saved from anticipation of risk while he is at his station, his nerve will be all the better on patrol.

The Acting Colonial Secretary intimated, that when the Government has escaped from being engrossed in financial management, a full enquiry is to be instituted into the whole question of frontier patrolling and protection. It cannot be said that there is any sign of panic haste, for the conditions have been in existence for a long time. The question of smuggling alone makes it probable that the extra expense would be justified. There is a great deal of pretence in our complacency about smuggling, which we all know to be a regular trade, for the risks of which it is possible to insure at a moderate premium in Hong Kong. And it is not probable that anybody pays duty by preference.

Another source of danger is the gambling which has been so comfortably established just across the border. No such institution would pay a good dividend unless some of the patrons occasionally had heavy losses. Losses are heavy in proportion to the resources of the loser, and a small amount may prompt to crime just as surely as a large amount. It is even a question whether the growth of Railway revenue on which we congratulate ourselves is not due to the same attraction. "The root of all evil" is also the root of all humbug. We were told that the authorities of the Kwangtung Province had set us a good example by prohibiting gambling in Canton. It is odd that those who are engaged in suppressing gambling never take a short journey on the Railway.

If that is too much to expect, it is at any rate a good thing that both European and Indian Police have been increased. It is quite true that the turrets will only be a protection "if the bandits go that way," but that is no reason for not building them.

Hong Kong Personalities

MR. S. J. CHEN

This is the sixty-eighth of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konyo, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Mr. S. J. Chen (Chen Shou-jen) Manager of the Hong Kong branch of the Bank of China.

Mr. Chen was born at Chaoyang, near Swatow, on January 9, 1889. He received his education partly in China and partly in the United States, first at Swatow University and afterwards at the University of Ohio and the University of Pennsylvania.

Returning to China after graduation, he was appointed to the Chair of Accountancy and Banking at Peking Government University and concurrently as Registrar of the University. These posts he held till 1921, when he joined the Bank of China and was appointed Manager of the Swatow branch. In 1927 he came to Hong Kong as Manager of the local branch, where he has served ever since without intermission. He was elected Chairman of the Chinese Bankers' Association for the year 1934.

FIVE YEARS AGO

(Extracts from the Sunday Herald of November 16, 1930.)

The outstanding feature in the local football League was the surprising defeat of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders at Sookunpoo in the First Division by the lowly-placed Kowloon team, who showed improved form and full value for their 4-2 victory. Janson, Moss, McKelvie and Simpson scored for Kowloon, while Wylie and Hughes obtained the soldiers' goals.

In the First Division of the Cricket League the Hong Kong Cricket Club drew with the Kowloon Cricket Club, yesterday. The Kowloon team declared at 164 for 3. W. Brace and E. C. Fincher being the highest scorers with 58 and 71 respectively, while Hong Kong Club scored 87 for 4 before stumps were drawn. T. E. Pearce scored 32 and E. J. R. Mitchell 27.

There was a full house at the Theatre Royal for the opening performances of "The Middle Watch." The play, presented by the local A.D.C., was produced by Commander G. F. Hole and Mr. Rupert Foster. Mr. Oscar Eager took the part of Private Ogg, R. M. and Mrs. Nela Grimble made an excellent Lady Howitt, while Mr. Maurice Barton was an adequate Chinese "boy."

The closing rate of the dollar on demand was 1/3 3/8.

The United Services were beaten by 32 points in a friendly rugby game yesterday. Bonnar, Lamport and Griffiths were the outstanding players for the Club.

Messrs. M. J. Breen, A. E. Wood and J. D. Lloyd were the recipients of many congratulations on their completion of 23 years of service in the Hong Kong Government.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF CHINESE NEWSPAPER

Several vernacular newspaper proprietors and Chinese "star" reporters were present at a dinner given at the Kam Loong Restaurant on Friday night by the proprietors of the Kung Shung Evening News in celebration of the journal's protest against the Executive Council restoring the licences of the Peak and Grand Hotels, official guests.

BRITISH ELECTION ANALYSED

BOTH MACDONALDS BEATEN

SPEAKER RETAINS HIS SEAT WITH 8,167 MAJORITY

London, Yesterday.

The General Election has resulted in a striking success for the National Government, whose supporters will have a large majority over the Opposition parties in the new House of Commons. The results had all been declared last night with the exception of a few which, owing to the remoteness of the poll in outlying islands or the postal ballot, as in the University seats, will not be known for a day or two.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and his son, Malcolm, Colonial Secretary, are the only Cabinet Ministers who have lost their seats. The Seaham result was: Mr. E. Shinwell, Labour, 33,380; Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, National Labour, 17,882; Labour gain. The Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Walter Elliot, had a majority of only two over the Labour candidate in the Kelvingrove division of Glasgow at the first count. After the recount he was declared elected by a majority of 149.

At Chelsea Sir Samuel Hoare had a majority of over 12,000 against his Labour opponent. The Home Secretary, Sir John Simon, was returned for Spen Valley. His majority of 18,000 at the 1931 election fell to 642.

The Minister for League of Nations Affairs, Mr. Anthony Eden, was re-elected for Warwick with a majority of 24,000, and Lord Cranborne, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, retained his seat by over 9,000 votes. All the other Ministers were re-elected, in some cases with increased majorities.

The Speaker of the House of Commons, Captain FitzRoy, who, contrary to constitutional usage, had to face a contested election, was returned with a majority of 8,167.

The Opposition front bench has been strengthened by the re-election of the majority of those who held Ministerial office in the former Labour Government but who lost their seats in 1931. Those returned include Mr. J. R. Clynes, Mr. Herbert Morrison, Mr. A. V. Alexander, Mr. Fred Montague, Mr. Lees-Smith, Mr. Ammon and Dr. Hugh Dalton, who was Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs in the last Labour Government.

But the Labour Party has lost Dr. Addison, who was defeated by the former Rugby International Mr. W. W. Wakefield, standing as a Conservative.

Another exception to the return of a former Labour leader was Miss Margaret Bonfield, the first woman Cabinet Minister in Britain, who was unsuccessful against the sitting member at Wallsend, Miss Irene Ward, Conservative.

Apart from the defeat of their leader, Sir Herbert Samuel, at Darwin, overnight the Liberal Opposition has lost many seats.

One woman, Miss Eleanor Rathbone, was returned unopposed. Lady Astor was re-elected at Plymouth, and Miss Horshugh, a British delegate to the last two Assemblies of the League of Nations, retained her seat at Dundee. The Duchess of Atholl, Miss Thelma Hazel and Mrs. Tate are other successful women candidates.

Some Figures

Mr. Lloyd George increased his majority for Carnarvon by 4,000 and he is rejoined in the House of Commons by his son and daughter, Major Gwilym Lloyd George, returned for Pembroke, and Miss Megan Lloyd George, who maintained her majority in Anglesea in a three-cornered fight.

Mr. Winston Churchill increased his majority at Epping. The Independent Labour party leader, Mr. James Maxton, defeated his Conservative opponent handsomely in the Bridgeton division of Glasgow, at the same time putting the Official nominee of the Labour Party at the bottom of the poll with only 594 votes.

Strained Nerves Are Starved Nerves

THE rush and hurry of modern life result in nervous strain and loss of vitality. You become "run-down" and "nervy." The cause is simply that the wastage of the nerve cells and tissues has not been made good by sufficient of the restorative elements to be obtained only from nourishment.

The food products from which 'Ovaltine' is made—malt, milk and eggs—are Nature's foods which are richest in nerve restoring nourishment. Eggs, in particular, are rich in organic phosphorus compounds which are essential for building up the brain and nerves.

Avoid haphazard mixtures of cocoa and chocolate which claim to be just as good. There is nothing just as good as 'Ovaltine'.

Mechanical Man Smokes, Drinks and Fishing With Double

Two patient fishermen. One is alive, and the "model" for the mechanical dummy. When the Robot's bait attracts a fish a bell rings and the arm is mechanically lifted to land the catch.

Milton Tenenbaum, who conceived the Mechanical Man, gives him a voice by talking into a microphone attached by wire to a loudspeaker in the Robot's chest.

The "heart, lungs and nerves" of the Robot, which, under the control of an operator, make the dummy seem to talk, smoke, and even go fishing with his living double.

FOR centuries it has been the dream of scientists to create a mechanical man capable of performing the work of servants and possessing, for the sake of novelty perhaps, the form and attributes of a human being—preferably the best attributes. In many instances robots have been built which perform astonishing stunts. Not all of these are patterned after the human anatomy, but they open doors, give alarms, talk, fire pistols, etc., all by means of remotely controlled machinery regulated by photoelectric cells, vacuum tubes and the mechanics of radio.

At last the robot urge has invaded the field of sculpture, and as a result there has materialized a realistic robot made to the likeness of an actual person. This mechanical man apparently smokes, drinks, walks, talks, and even goes fishing with his living double. The robot is perhaps the most life-like ever conceived. His home is in Brooklyn, New York, and his creator is a young sculptor-mechanic, Milton Tenenbaum, who recently placed his invention on exhibition. The facial features are made of a secret skin-like substance, difficult to distinguish from real flesh.

G.K.C.'s "Man"

THE newest robot approaches the ideal mechanical man as envisioned by Gilbert K. Chesterton in one of his famous detective stories. In the intriguing bit of fiction the author described an inventor whose household was served by mechanical slaves. They waited on their master at table; they performed as valets, window-washers and gardeners. As the story proceeded, the master was murdered, and investigations revealed his weird staff of monsters, who were suspected of having turned on him.

The Brooklyn robot, of course, has no sinister aspects. He appears to be a kindly old man in modest attire, with a smile as benevolent as that of the "average Brooklyn citizen" after whom he was modelled.

The robot will talk back to you. Concealed inside his chest is a microphone which picks up your voice and relays it to the operator at a remote position. The operator then replies to you through another microphone, and his voice is carried to a loudspeaker and amplifying system also in the torso of the dummy.

Fishing Trip

MUCH publicity attended the dummy's recent fishing trip. He was taken with the living man from whom he was modelled, to a dock. There, the two of them sat patiently, as shown in the photograph, each holding a fishing rod. They appeared to be twin brothers out for a holiday. The fishing rod of the robot is electrically controlled so that a tug at the line will cause it to jerk.

A simpler arrangement provides the illusion that the robot is smoking his pipe. Down in the abdominal region the robot is fitted with a rubber bulb attached to a tube which runs to the mouth. When a pipe is inserted between the lips, the operator starts a magnetic impulse which deflates and inflates the bulb, causing suction on the pipe, and an alternate discharge of the smoke from the lips. Compressed air induces the leg motions of the dummy.

The robot's real purpose is to perform as a substitute for and improvement over animated cartoons. With a cast of such robots, the animated pictures, which now lack perspective, could be shown in full relief.

The inventor demonstrating the gadgets that make the Robot smoke a pipe. A cam lever squeezes and releases a rubber bulb attached to a tube running to the mouth.

Shanghai Cricketers Feted

MR. and Mrs. F. D. Begg entertained some of the Shanghai cricketers to a cocktail party last Tuesday evening. Both Mr. and Mrs. Begg lived in Shanghai for some years before coming to Hong Kong, so they were happy to be meeting old friends. Among their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Hayward, Miss Barbara Lord, Miss Himsforth, Miss Glendinning, Mr. G. B. Elliot, Mr. J. C. Jenkins, Mr. Donald Leach, Mr. E. M. P. Williams, and Mr. R. Booth.

After their cocktails the guests were ready for games; one of the games they played had the gruesome title of "Murder," but I'm told it was not quite what sounded! Altogether they had a very jolly time and the party only broke up in the early hours of the morning.

Italian Consulate Reception

THE reception at the Italian Consulate on the occasion of King Victor Emmanuel's birthday last Tuesday was so popular that even the spacious reception rooms of Comm. Bianconi were overflowing. People were coming and going all the while, some stopping to chat, others just paying their respects and drinking the traditional glass of champagne.

The atmosphere was certainly friendly and gay and nobody seemed to be worried about sanctions; in fact one gentleman, when asked what he would like to drink, said "I'll have gin with sanctions." This remark so pleased the bystanders that I shouldn't be surprised if it becomes common property around the clubs and hotels.

It is difficult to remember individuals in that big crowd, but I saw Sir William Hornell keeping the group about him lively, and Major E. J. R. Mitchell was there, head and shoulders above all around—I was tempted to use him as a scout to tell me all about those I couldn't see. I saw, too, Herr H. Gipperich, the Consul for Germany, Senior Allegre, the Consul for Panama, Dr. Laborinho, the Consul for Portugal, and M. Renier, the acting Consul for France, who was earnestly talking to his group.

Mr. MacPherson told me he was very glad to be back in Hong Kong, and he certainly did look very pleased. Mr. Piovaneili, the manager of the Hong Kong Hotel, was there; he had reason to be proud of the catering, which was supplied by his hotel. And we are not forgetting Mr. Bianconi himself, who was a most solicitous host.

Interporters' Wives Pay Visit

THERE were two ladies who came to visit Hong Kong with the Interport cricketers last week. One was Mrs. L. F. Stokes—and that is quite a romantic tale. Mr. and Mrs. Stokes were only married a fortnight ago yesterday and they came straight to Hong Kong to enjoy a brief honeymoon at Repulse Bay before the rest of the cricketers arrived. When the latter did arrive the couple went to stay with Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Begg!

Mrs. E. M. P. Williams unfortunately had not been very well, so she came to Hong Kong for a little change. She and

Lady Southern with guests at the tea-party given at Government House on Tuesday last to the members of the Chinese Medical Association and local representatives of the British Medical Association. ("Sunday Herald" photo.)

Mr. Williams stayed with Mr. and Mrs. McAvoy.

Peace Poster Competition

THE impression on entering the Cathedral Hall on Wednesday afternoon was quite overwhelming. The Hall was full of screens showing almost two hundred different posters, and a very big crowd was there to view them. This League of Nations poster competition certainly was a big success; there had been an excellent response, and over a hundred adults and some fifty children sent in posters. Not only had they come from Hong Kong but from Kwangtung and Singapore as well.

The posters were judged in the morning, and it must have been a most difficult choice. However, the judges seemed to agree very well, for, although each voted independently, one and all chose the poster of Mr. J. H. Maycock for the first prize. Lady Pollock was one of those who were very impressed by the big effort made and the extraordinarily high standard of the results. As one of the judges, she said she had spent a most interesting morning. Lady Southern's speech on war was one of the finest I have heard. There was no formality in her address, but rather all she said seemed to come right from the heart.

Coming-Of-Age Party

A coming-of-age party is always jolly, and Mrs. D. K. Paul's party at the Harbour View Hotel a week ago yesterday was no exception.

Miss Edith Holloway made a very charming hostess and looked very distinctive in a simple crepe-de-chine gown.

The wedding of Miss Phyllis Western and Lieut. J. K. MacAllister, of H.M.S. Daring, at St. John's Cathedral on November 9. The bridal couple leaving the Cathedral under an archway of swords. ("Sunday Herald" photo.)

In fact the story goes that some of our Scottish community were still very audibly sounding their bagpipes at four o'clock in the morning!

This has been a very good season for the Reel Club and their Scottish dancing has been of a high standard. The members, one and all, are regretting that after a couple more meetings their season will be coming to an end.

About TOWN

THE Cricket Interport was an ideal society fixture in every way. What is needed from the spectators' point of view has nothing to do with the rules of the game. It is, of course, first of all necessary to have good sunny weather, a comfortable seat under shelter, available refreshments, and a contest that has its moments of excitement without any such engrossing crisis as would prevent a bit of wandering about and general conversation. Everybody was there that one expected to see, and the play was keen and good. To anyone who knew the sensations of the batsman, it was a treat to watch the howling in the comfortable serenity of the stands. It is so infinitely more satisfying to think "he ought to have gone out to that" than to go out to one and wish that one had stayed at home.

The Last Wicket

PROVIDED the difference is not more than about 50 the climax of every match is the last few wickets. The fielding side seems to have the match in hand, but a few boundaries that look easy suggest immediately "what if they should make a few more?" The last Shanghai wickets filled the bill so far as that was concerned, and however unlikely it was never impossible that they would keep their ends up long enough, as the previous partnership had done. It seems to be a rule of nature that the tail of a team can score as long as they are content to forget all the rules of "safety first" and simply hit the ball. The record for the last wicket is, I believe, 178. Imagine the feelings of the fielding side! The finest bit of decided cricket I ever saw was in a County match, Lancashire versus Surrey, with the championship at stake. Lancashire had a big advantage on the first innings, and went in at the end with 60 to make, but during the night the wicket had been soaked, and was drying under a hot sun. It was practically unplayable. The Captain, A. C. Maclaren, who captained an English Test team to Australia, went in first, and played correct cricket, only to have the grief of seeing a sad procession at the other end, so that nine wickets were down for 27. There was only one thing to do, and he did it. The last player to come in was George Nash, a very tricky slow bowler who had only one batting stroke, which was to return the ball gently to the bowler's hands. In dead silence the last ball of the over was sent down. It completely beat Nash but passed over the middle stump. Then Maclaren got to work. No matter where the ball pitched he ran out to it and slammed it four times running to the boundary. The fifth ball he blocked and stole a run. The same thing again—had he missed any ball he must have been stumped. The winning hit was his first six. Except for the first ball, Nash was a spectator!

George Arliss As Richelieu

AS far as one can see the number of people who raise their voices in the wilderness in favour of some approach to reality in films is not big enough to make any impression. Not long ago quite a number of big men in the film world were passing through Hong Kong, and with all due diffidence I argued with them that in the lives of the famous characters that were represented there were more dramatic moments than any that were selected for the screen, and that it would be a great reinforcement of interest if one could feel that the atmosphere of the film was, if not strictly correct in all details, at least possible. Otherwise it would be better to stick to modern American plots. The answer was always the same, that the one aim was entertainment, and that history for its own sake had no interest at all.

The only actor left that takes his work seriously is George Arliss, whose series of historical characters deserves high praise for the gallant attempt to rise above his environment. But why not give him a scenario that accords with realities? The producer no doubt thought it was necessary to make a Cardinal a priest, who could perform the marriage ceremony of the two young people whom he had befriended. But a Cardinal is simply one who has a vote in the conclave for the election of a new Pope, and Richelieu was a layman. The marriage would not have been legal. It is only 50 years since the last lay Cardinal died, and although he has had no successor there is nothing to prevent the appointment of a layman.

No Closing Gals At "Y"

A recent meeting of the European Y.M.C.A. Swimming Section, which was attended by Mr. E. F. Selk, Hon. Secretary, Mr. H. G. Lange, Mr. R. Goldman and Mr. R. B. Wood, it was decided not to hold a closing gala as the season had already been concluded.

It was decided that prizes won for 1934 should be sent to winners, and that the 1935 prizes be distributed at the next best occasion.

The formation of a Boys' Swimming Section at the European Y.M.C.A. is now holding the attention of the Hon. Secretary and Committee members as a means of combatting the ever-decreasing swimming membership.

It is a shame that, with such an excellent bath, the standard of swimming is so low, and that the adult membership is equally disappointing.

Gymnasium At Y.M.C.A.?

IN view of the ever-decreasing use of the swimming pool during the winter months, a scheme is now

Billiards Champion Beaten

A. J. OSMUND, the Colony billiards champion, suffered his first defeat for a long time the other evening at the Recreio when he lost to Silva (from Macao) in the triangular tournament between the Recreio, Club Lusitano and the Catholic Union Club. The game was one of 200 up and at the end the champion was 54 points in arrears.

Although he has given up active participation in sport for many years now, J. M. Alves, the share broker, was in his younger days an excellent carman, having figured prominently in the V.R.C. events.

Petherick Beats Nish

J. E. HENSON beat L. A. R. Duncan in the Final Round of the Non-Prizewinners' competition at the Kowloon B.G.C. last Sunday, while V. Petherick beat H. Nish in the Final Round of the President's Cup competition.

T. Armstrong and L. Guy are the two finalists in the Vice-President's competition at the K.B.G.C. this year.

in hand to convert the pool into the first up-to-date gymnasium in Hong Kong, and estimates are already being drawn up.

But, before such a scheme can be approved, the Directors of the Y.M.C.A. must be assured that the idea will be well supported. To those members of the European public who are ever in want of keeping their "lines" intact this news should be very welcome.

Kowloon Rugby Club?

THERE is a move in Kowloon to reorganise the Kowloon Rugby Club, but, with no ground available, it is feared that the scheme is likely to fall through.

Another Blow To Athletic

IT is understood that Chui Ah-fai, the Athletic pivot, will not be able to come to Hong Kong for the week-end soccer games. If this is so the Athletic are indeed very unfortunate as they have now lost "Darky" Chan, who is remaining in Shanghai.

Another popular bowler who will retire shortly is Clark Atkinson, of Kowloon Docks, who probably has more bowling trophies to his credit than any other player. He is leaving in March next year.

N. Watson, one of the most popular members of the K.B.G.C., is leaving for Scotland on Home leave next February.

Mr. N. K. Littlejohn, a prominent local golfer, who is connected with the Port Development Department of the P.W.D., is expected to return from Home leave about the end of this month.

Veteran Cricketer's Comeback

A. Arculli, president of the Indian Recreation Club for many years and at one time their best all-round cricketer, was recently forced to give up playing regularly owing to indifferent health, but I understand that he will be playing again this season. In the intra-Club games to date he has shown definite promise of a return to his old form.

Sportsman To Wed To-day

ARTHUR BROWN, whose marriage to Miss Batrix Maria Remedios will take place at the Rosary Church this afternoon, was a few years ago the best left winger in the senior soccer League. He has also represented the Colony in Hong Kong against Shanghai in a soccer Interport.

The Radical-Socialist Group then passed a motion that the State Budget must be kept at an equilibrium under all circumstances. — Trans-Ocean Service.

MISS ALOHA WANDERWELL IN THE COLONY

GLOBE-TROTTER'S

REMARKABLE CHANGES IN
H. K. IN 10 YEARS

Looking very trim and smart in a black satin dress, Miss Aloha Wanderwell, the famous globe-trotter, arrived in the Colony yesterday morning by the s.s. President Jefferson. Interviewed by the Sunday Herald on board the liner, Miss Wanderwell said that the object of her present trip was to fulfil her ambition of seeing the Philippines, New Zealand and the Scandinavian countries — the places she missed in her former travels.

"There sure has been a change in this place since I was here last 10 years ago," said Miss Wanderwell, as she gazed across the harbour from the deck. She remarked on the Bank building and the vehicular ferries, adding "Just imagine what can happen in 10 years."

Miss Wanderwell said that she and a party of four were mainly interested in gathering material for her radio broadcast talks. "I am primarily interested in the advance made in foreign countries so that I can go home and tell the folks what keen competition the United States has abroad," she said.

Concluding, Miss Wanderwell said that her trip would occupy some 18 months, during the course of which she hoped to cover 22 countries. She said that she would be staying about two weeks in Hong Kong, but when asked where she would be residing she smiled and said that she "never booked in advance as that took away all the adventure!"

Travel By Car

Wherever possible the party intended to travel in their specially constructed motor-car, which in itself is a sight to behold. Painted a bright yellow, along one side is a board bearing the emblems of 62 automobile clubs, the latest addition being that of the Automobile Club of China.

The car is equipped with a built-in radio, cooking and heating units and a vanity case. It can be converted into a double bed.

Miss Wanderwell was born at sea, educated in France and pays taxes in Florida. At the age of 14 she ran away to sea on a tour which lasted three years. She admits modestly that she speaks about 16 different languages.

SINO-JAPANESE TENSION INCREASING

200,000 CHINESE TROOPS HELD
READY FOR EMERGENCY

NATIONAL SOLIDARITY

[From Our Own Correspondent]

Canton, Yesterday.

Further estrangement between China and Japan seems imminent owing to the decision of the Nanking Government not to make any more concessions to Japanese demands for political and economic control of China.

About 200,000 Chinese troops are stationed in a semi-circle around Nanking and Shanghai for fear of a sudden Japanese occupation of the Chinese capital. Nervousness has been prevailing at Shanghai, as Sino-Japanese hostilities may break out.

The abandonment of the silver standard in China increases the prices of Japanese goods, which are not selling so well as before, and in Tokyo this managed currency is considered anti-Japanese.

The Japanese General Staff in Canton is being turned down. Canton's backing of Nanking has the effect of national solidarity in warding off Japanese aggression.

DYNASTY STABLE WINS 2 LEGER: COLD MORNING'S RECORD

Gus da Roza Registers "Hat Trick"

MR. FROST CARRIES OFF HONOURS

HEROD RUNS POOR THIRD WHEN HEAVILY BACKED

MISTAKE BAY AND FESTIVAL EVE PAY $332.30 ON "DOUBLE"

The winning of the two Legers for China ponies by the Dynasty stable, the sensational defeat of Mr. Hem's Herod, the track record set up by Cold Morning when winning the Freemantle St. Leger, and Mr. Gus da Roza's three successive wins — on King's Jubilee, King's Warden and Wadebridge — provided the main features of the Hong Kong Jockey Club's Twelfth Extra Race Meeting, which was attended by a fairly large crowd yesterday at the Valley.

Mr. Leo Frost carried off the riding honours for the day with four wins, two seconds and a third in seven starts, as against Mr. Roza's three wins and a second in six races. Mr. Dynasty and Mr. Reidy shared the honours among the owners, each having two wins and a third.

The weather cleared up surprisingly after rain and a very fair crowd was present in bright sunshine for the Hotham Handicap, which saw Alacrity a warm favourite in a field of only four starters.

Snowy River set the pace, only to be displaced by Halcyn at the foot of the stands. Lady Southern's entry then led for the remainder of the way until a furlong from the post, when Snowy River came again to win by two lengths in fast time for "B" Class ponies. Alacrity, too far back all the way, beat High Finance for the minor placing, though he did not finish as strongly as usual.

Herod's Failure

The Hong Kong St. Leger saw eight acceptances. Soldier of Peace and Victoria Hall being the only non-acceptors. Herod carried 988 lbs. out of 1,547 for a win.

The start was a bad one for the favourite, the flag startling him and causing him to swerve outwards towards the Golf Club. This cost him 10 lengths.

Harvest View went out to the lead, followed by Rose Queen, King's Jubilee, Herod was in the rear and Mr. Frost appeared quite content to hold him there. On reaching the back straight for the second time, with the order almost identical, Herod wiped off a couple of lengths, but did not by any means give his supporters much confidence. On the corner into the straight Pontine Bay, followed closely by King's Jubilee, came through, but the Dynasty crack cracked him a hundred yards from the post and successfully staved off a final burst by Pontine Bay to win by a length in 3.38.4. Herod had all his work out out to beat Rose Queen for third place. Herod's win paid his supporters $68.00.

King's Warden Wins

The favourite won the Castle Peak Handicap when King's Warden, after being fully extended by King's Jubilee, beat Soldier of Peace.

There was a dead-heat for third place.

Mr. Gus da Roza, left, rode three winners in succession yesterday, but Mr. Leo Frost, right, carried off riding honours with four wins.

pointed time and again after his Roosty Hill Derby win, went to the post favourite for the Freemantle St. Leger, though Southern Cross and Vixen Tor, a winner on his last two outings, were not far behind in the betting.

Derby Day set off at a terrific pace at the fall of the flag and soon established a furlong lead. Southern Cross led the rest of the field with Cold Morning and Shooting Star on his tail. Entering the back straight for the last time Shooting Star was taken up with a rush and by the time the Rock was reached he was leading, Derby Day having then collapsed, as was fully expected. Coming into the home straight, however, Cold Morning responded well and came in an easy winner in the record time of 3.17.2, three and four-fifths seconds inside Able Amazon's track record!

Shooting Star was a good second, while Streamline beat the favoured Vixen Tor for third place. Mrs. Penson's entry was always in the rear and never in a challenging position. Southern Cross, after a promising start, faded right out of the picture.

Having the champion jockey up, Cold Morning paid only $13.80 for his long awaited win.

Objection Not Sustained

After a false start, during which Mr. Chiu was thrown by Limelight, the novices' race provided three minor upsets when Festival Eve (Mr. Yuen) beat Flybynight (Mr. Cheung) by a narrow margin and when Copper Idol filled the minor place. The greatly favoured Heart's Glory, Wembley Stag and Tiny Star finished nowhere in a large field. Limelight filling fourth place.

Festival Eve, which paid $108.30 and $50.50 on the pari-mutuel, paid 63 backers $32.30 in the "daily double"—2,110 selected Mistake Bay for the first leg. Flybynight paid $71.80 and Copper Idol $117.50.

Following the race a protest was lodged by Mr. Cheung, rider of Flybynight, against Mr. Yuen (Festival Eve) for boring in the home stretch 150 yards from the post, but the objection was not sustained by the Stewards.

Pride Of Tsingtao Wins

Pride of Tsingtao, considered a very good thing for the Shum Chun

Handicap (second section) paid a surprise win dividend of $31.00 as the result of the failure of What A Chance and Great Hall.

Zero gave the winner a hard struggle, getting away to a flying start, but was caught 100 yards from the post and beaten by a neck. What A Chance was third and Royal Romance fourth.

Chin Iu-pun (center), above, beat Tsui Yun-pui in an exhibition tennis match at the C. R. C. yesterday.

SHANGHAI CHINESE TENNIS STARS WIN ALL GAMES

V. T. WANG DEFEATS S. A. RUMJAHN

SHANGHAI LADY CHAMPION'S EXCELLENT DISPLAY

Dazzling tennis featured the exhibition matches at the Chinese Recreation Club yesterday, when the contingent of three Shanghai Chinese players and Mrs. Dimitrijevic, the Shanghai lady champion and former holder of the United States Junior Championship, were seen in action with local players.

Mrs. Dimitrijevic gave a wonderful all-round exhibition, displaying a great variety of shots. She has lost none of her accuracy and brilliant placements which gained her the U.S. Junior title in 1930—in fact she is, just as good as several of the Colony's leading men players.

Mrs. Dimitrijevic's entry into the exhibition matches came as a pleasant surprise as Khoo Hoo-hye discovered her on board the s.s. President Jefferson, and arrangements were made yesterday morning to include her in the exhibition matches.

Rumjahn Beaten

V. T. Wang, who reached the final of the Shanghai Hard Court championship, gave a dazzling display to beat Sirdar Rumjahn, the Colony champion, in a hard fought struggle.

The latter was at the top of his form, but found Wang's baseline game just a little too much for him. The latter's strong driving on both hands was very good, although he was often beaten at the net when dealing with an easy kill.

Chin Iu-pun gave a fine all-round exhibition. A very young player, he gave a fiery display and was very accurate in his placements. Khoo Hoo-hye did not play, but will do so to-day, the programme for which is as follows:—

2.30 p.m. Tsui Yun-pui vs. Chin Iu-pun (best of 3 sets).
3.45 p.m. S. A. Rumjahn vs. V. T. Wang (best of 3 sets).
If time permits a Doubles match will follow.

Yesterday's scores were:—
V. T. Wang (Shanghai) beat S. A. Rumjahn 7-5, 6-4.
Chin Iu-pun (Shanghai) beat Tsui Yun-pui 6-4.

Ho Ka-lau and Mrs. Dimitrijevic drew with Chin Iu-pun and Tsui Yun-pui 7-5, 4-6.

OFFICIAL CIRCLES NONCOMMITTAL

Concerning the evacuation of General Shang Cheng's troops from Peiping, Chinese circles here state that the evacuation was pre-arranged, leaving General Sung Chieh-yuan's troops in complete control of the Peiping-Tientsin area, where peace and order will be maintained by General Sung's troops.

Despite repeated assurances from official circles that no untoward developments are expected in the near future, the Chinese populace continue to view the developments in Shanghai and North China with serious apprehension and make enquiries from all possible channels for the latest information.—Reuter.

ENGLAND MEETS PORTUGAL TO-DAY IN SOCCER CLASH

NDAY HERALD CUP SERIES

ISSUE WILL DEPEND ON HALVES

A thrilling soccer duel is forecasted for this afternoon on the Kowloon Football Club ground when England and Portugal clash in the First Round of Sunday Herald International Charity Cup Competition, commencing at 3.30 p.m.

Both sides are practically at full strength and as in previous cases, where two very fast forward lines are featured, the issue will be decided by the half-back lines.

In to-day's case Portugal's attack is much faster than England's and much trickier, but with Swain and Strange and a really excellent intermediate line in Robertson, Lawton and Bowers, the Portuguese chances are remote.

Ward and Bertie Gosano having played together before, will probably constitute the biggest danger to the England defence, and Bowers and Strange will have their work cut out keeping them out.

Very Good Wingers

T. Castilho, the Portuguese right-winger, is very fast off the mark, while his centring has lost none of its accuracy, and A. Alves, who has superseded his brother on the left-wing, is as good, if not better. Gomes, who plays inside to him, is still very tricky, although he would do well to rid himself of the ball sooner.

Portugal's defence is an excellent one with R. Marques, the Recreio custodian, and A. V. Gosano and V. Costa in front. The intermediate line will be led by N. Beltrao, who is, however, still uncertain to play, as his injured ankle is still giving him trouble.

The Semi-Final rounds and Final Round will take place on December 25 and 26, and March 29, 1936, respectively.

The following are the teams:—
Portugal:—R. Marques (Recreio), A. V. Gosano (Recreio) and V. Costa (St. Joseph's); N. Delgado (Recreio), N. Beltrao (Recreio) and J. Elms (St. Joseph's); T. Castilho (Recreio), A. Ward (St. Joseph's), B. Gosano (Recreio), J. Gomes (Recreio) and A. Alves (Recreio).

England:—Durham (Artillery, Lynton), Swain (East Lancs) and S. Strange (Club), Robertson (Club), Lawton (East Lancs) and Bowers (Navy); F. Fowler (Club), Sandford (East Lancs), Higgins (Lincoln), Ridley (Lincoln) and Bultry (Lincoln).

Reserves:—Harmsworth (East Lancs), Wolverson (Navy), Morton (Artillery, Lynton), Harris (Artillery, Lynton), Stevens (Police), Johnson (Police) and Bickford (Club).

H.K.C.C. JUNIORS BEATEN

High Scoring By K.C.C.

On the Club ground yesterday, the K. C. C. 2nd XI in a friendly cricket match by 108 runs.

K. C. C. 2nd XI—164 for 6 dec. (F. Broadbridge 36, W. L. Mackenzie 35, B. Lay 32, F. H. King 1 for 24).
H. K. C. C.—56 for 9 (One man absent) (F. A. Dunnett 24; C. B. R. Sergeant 3 for 14, A. Durling 2 for 3).

An Abyssinian division with machine-guns on the march in Ogaden province.

"HAT TRICK" FOR LEE WAI TONG AGAINST K.F.C.

A minute later South China went further ahead. Boyes made a remarkable save from Lee turning the ball round the post for a corner, from which Tam Kong-pak crashed the ball high into the roof of the net.

A quick forward pass from Tam to Lee Wai-tong gave that feinting his third opportunity, and, feinting his way past Everest, he coolly tapped the ball past the advancing Boyes.

A storming raid by Kowloon just prior to the interval looked hopeful, but Wong Wing brought off a clever save from Knox's powerfully directed drive. A second shot by D. Knox was again well saved, and the end arrived with Kowloon pressing strongly.

Beautiful gowns, of contrasting design and colour, worn by a bevy of beautiful women, both Chinese and foreign, made the first important dance of the local season, the second annual dinner dance of the Canadian Chinese Club, a spectacular success last night.

RECREIO LOSE AT HOME BY THE ODD GOAL

The Club were now exerting considerable pressure on the Recreio goal and deserved a further goal, and they would have had it but for grand defensive work by Fernandes, Gosano and Bowen.

The Recreio then resorted to long kicking and, from a pass from mid-field, Delgado ran in to beat Rodgers. Immediately from the kick off, however, the Club again secured the lead when Elliot scored a good goal after Fernandes had made a brilliant save from E. Strange.

ATHLETIC BEATEN

Following the changeover, play favoured the Athletic for a short period until a good movement up the middle resulted in Ip Pak Fong scoring with a splendid shot well wide of Cooper's reach.

The Corps were awarded a penalty shortly afterwards for "hands" by an Athletic defender, and Clarke, who was entrusted, sent in a really good shot, but Li Kwok Ki brought off a brilliant save, diving full length to push the ball clear.

LABOURITES SHOW DISAPPOINTMENT

Mr. Baldwin's loyalty to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald creates the expectation of the latter's early return, but an extensive Cabinet reshuffle is inevitable. Mr. Winston Churchill is generally tipped to succeed Sir Bolton Eyres-Monsell as First Lord of the Admiralty, and Mr. Anthony Eden is backed alternately for the War Office, to replace Lord Halifax, or the Dominions Office, vice Mr. J. H. Thomas.

HAILED BY PRESS

The Government's election majority of at least 250 is hailed by the press as a verdict in favour of national consolidation, a guarantee of a period of stability at home, and continuity of policy in international affairs.

The Times describes it as a real triumph, not only for a Government with an unrivalled record and a straightforward programme, but also for the British people, who have given unchallengeable proof of their steadiness to the whole world.

The Financial Times says that every section of the stock exchange responded immediately, a long list of advances testifying to the relief and renewed assurance.

PRESTIGE STRENGTHENED

The Daily Mail says that the effect of such a resounding success will be felt throughout the world and will strengthen British prestige.

Elsewhere it is stated that Britain has shown the world that she stands solid and four-square for peace, progress and prosperity, and the verdict reveals a quiet, firm determination that national policy will broadly follow the lines of the past four years.—Reuter.

FOREIGN OPINIONS

The following are some foreign comments on the results of the General Election in Britain:—

Le Figaro (Paris):—"Happy England, assured of continuity of policy!"

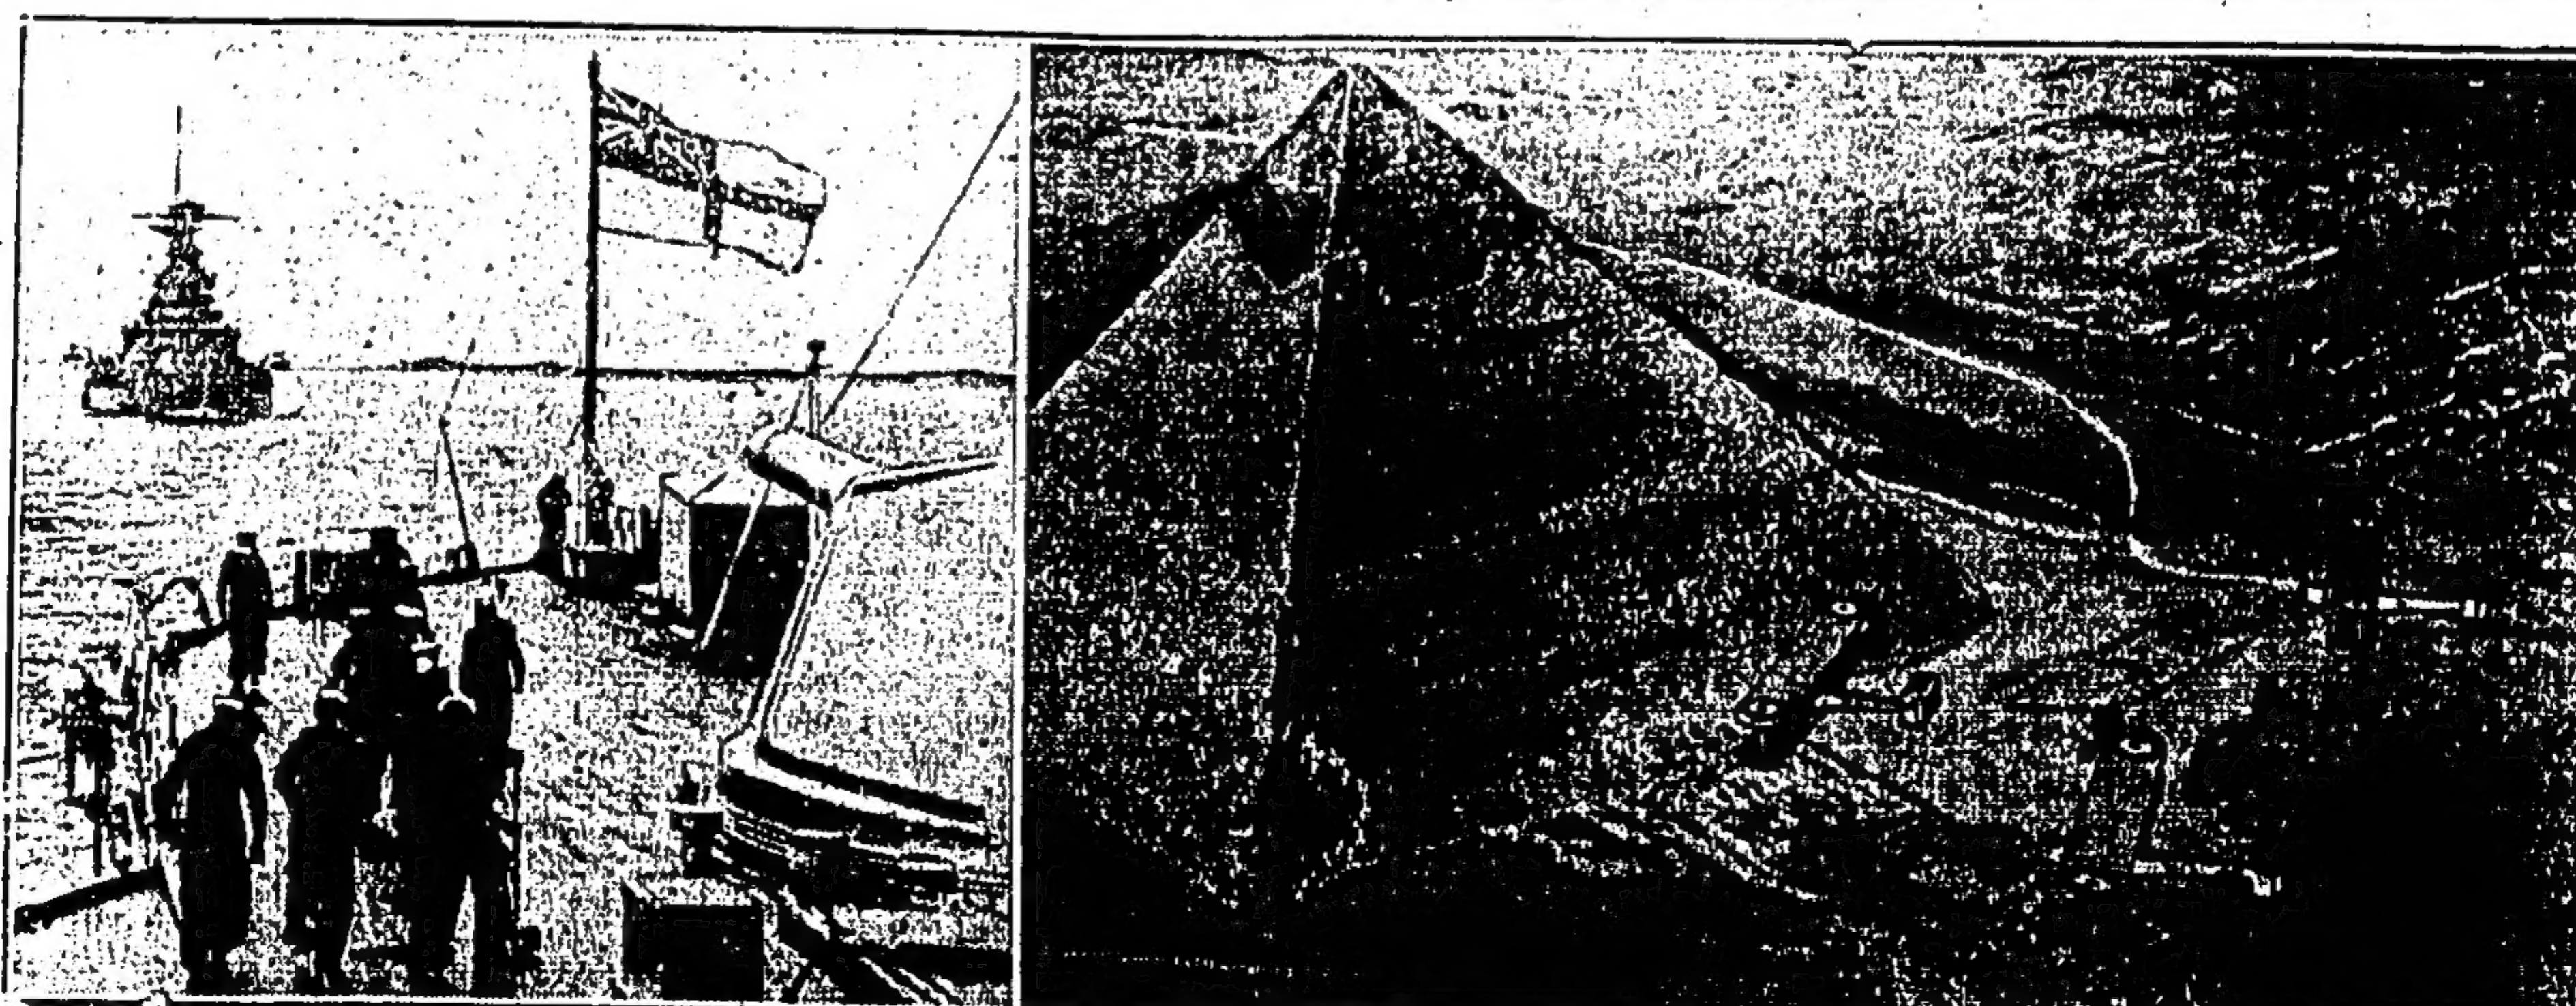

Wiener Zeitung (Vienna):—"Europe must realize that Britain's policy remains stable."

Lokalanzeiger (Berlin):—"Britain is now enabled to act at Geneva with more authority than hitherto."

Voelksischer Beobachter (Berlin):—"Mr. Baldwin has been given the vote of confidence for which he asked."

Messaggero (Rome):—"It is feared that there will be little change in the British attitude, as Mr. Anthony Eden is still in the party."

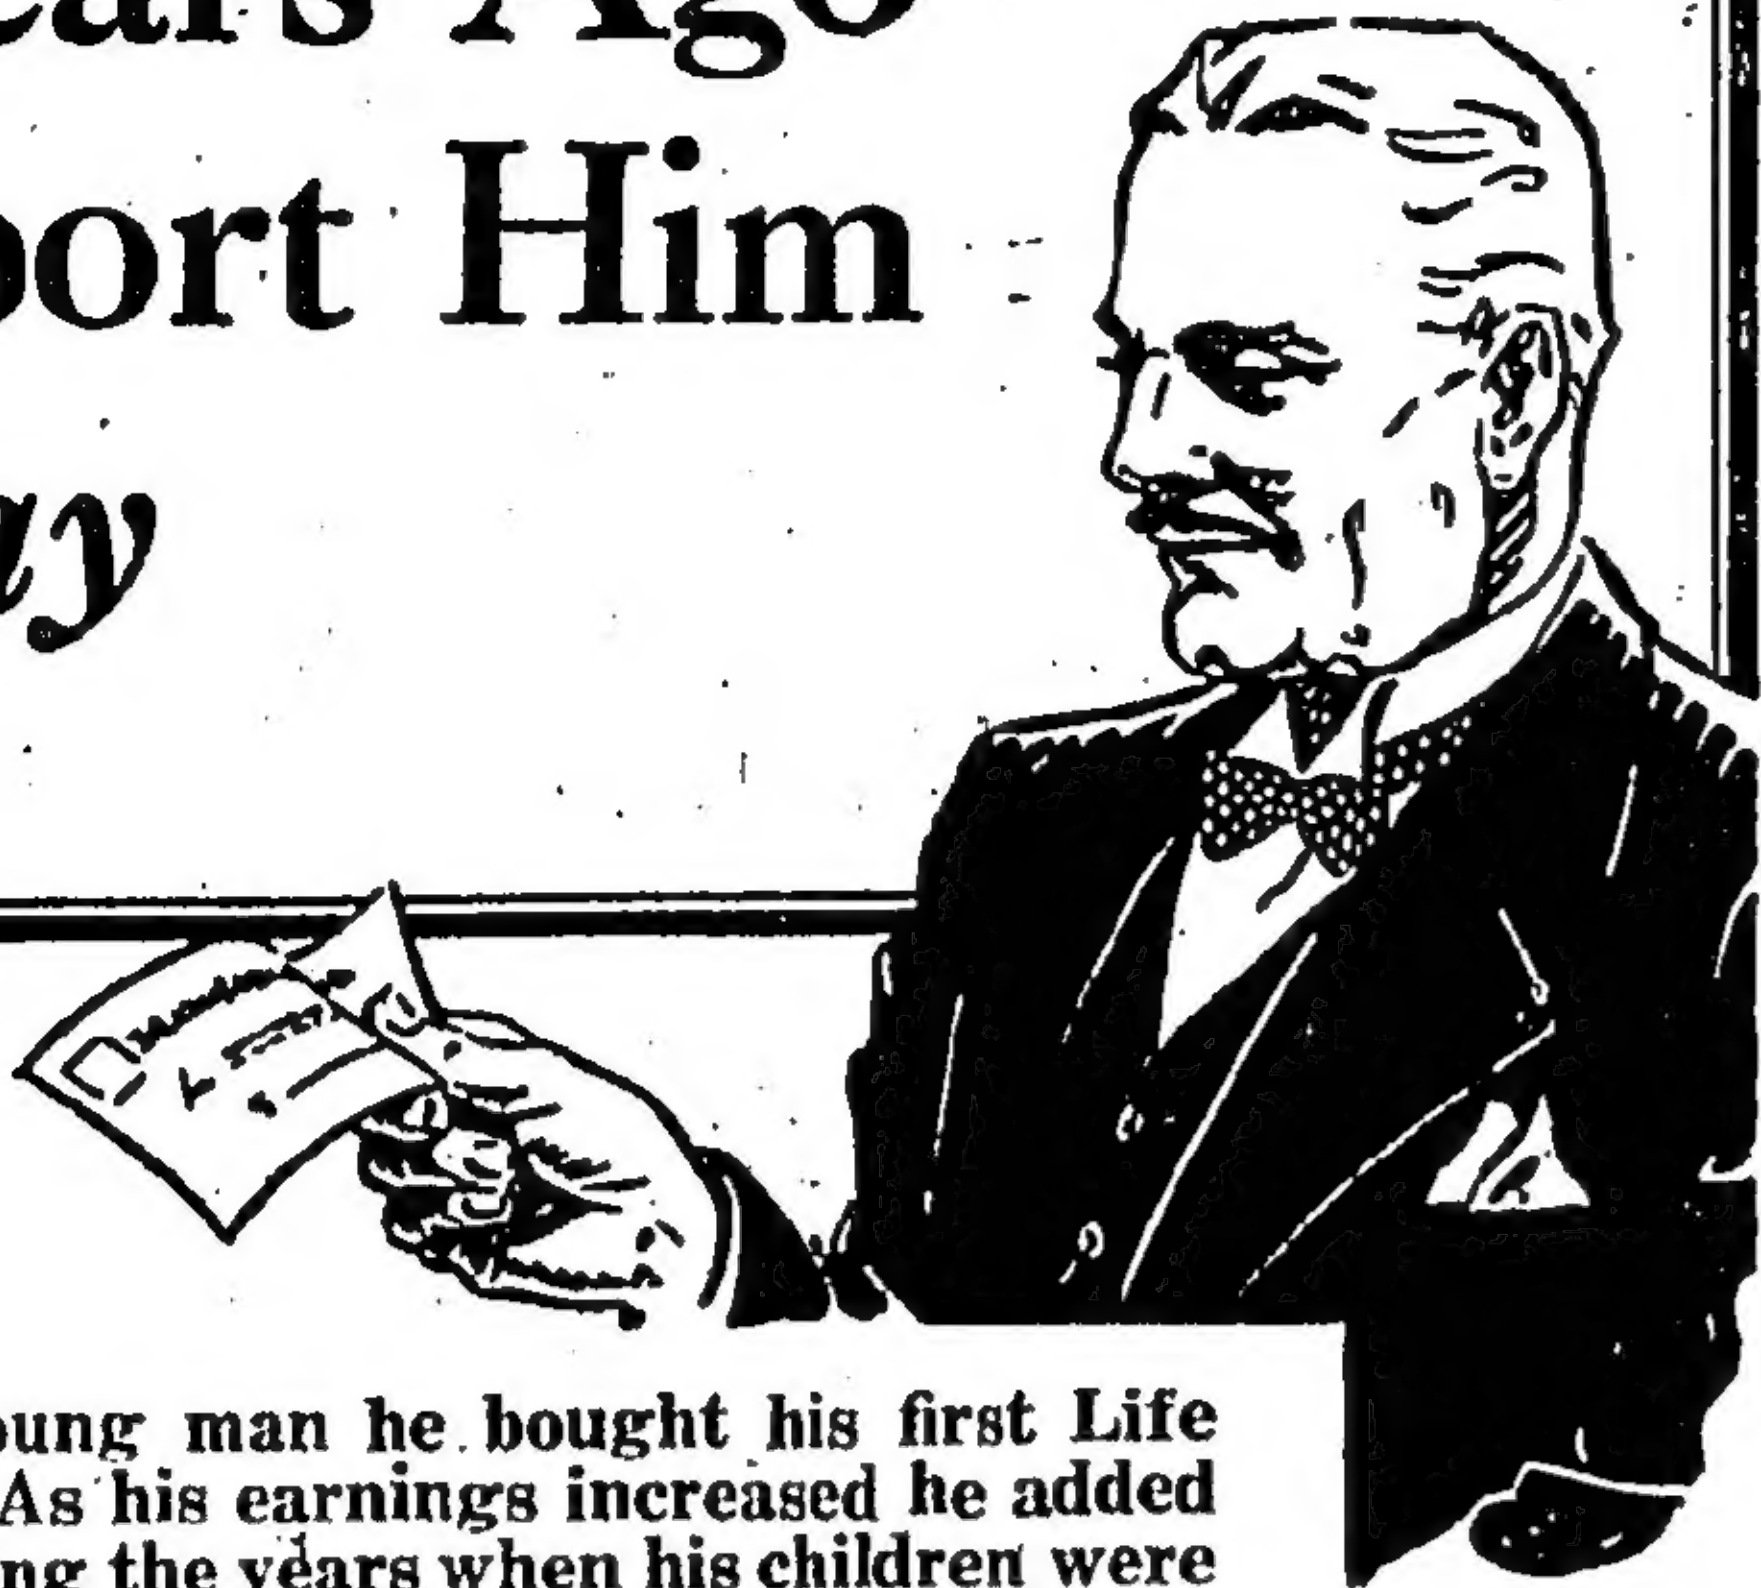

Herald Tribune (New York):—"The outcome of the election is a useful indication that the virtues of sanity, moderation and sound economics have value, even in these times."—Reuter.

Egypt, one of the oldest battlegrounds in the world, is again resounding to marching feet, as Britain mobilised her fighting forces for the threatened conflict with Italy. Our photographs show H.M.S. Warapite (foreground), leading a line of warships which might be used to blockade the Suez Canal, and air force manoeuvres over the ancient pyramids of Giza.

His Savings of Years Ago Support Him To-day

When he was a young man he bought his first Life Insurance Policy. As his earnings increased he added other policies. During the years when his children were young he felt secure in the protection provided by his insurance. Now that they are grown, he has retired from business and, as a result of his systematic thrift, enjoys an assured income.

There is nothing comparable to life insurance as a means to financial security throughout life.

FABULOUS ANIMALS OF CHINA DRAGON'S MANY FORMS AND PRESENTATIONS MYTHICAL PROGENITOR OF ANCIENT EMPERORS

(By PHYLLIS JURY)

Part II
THE dragon in China has always been a symbol of the imperial power. A five-clawed dragon was emblazoned on the Emperor's robes like a coat of arms. It was also allowed for the use of the Emperor's sons and princes of the first and second rank, but princes of the third and fourth rank had to be content with one claw less on their emblem. To see the Emperor was to see the Dragon's Face; his mind was the Dragon's Wisdom; his hand the Dragon's claw; his children the Dragon's seed; and his anger the Reversal of the Dragon Scales. To Mount the Six Dragons meant to become an Emperor.

Female Dragon Recognised
In the Sung dynasty, under the influence of Buddhism, which attributed to the dragon spiritual qualities and made it protector of the divinities and guardian of temples, the dragons were given titles by the Emperor. The green dragon was given the title of Dispensing-Universal-Favour King; the yellow dragon, the Sincere-Prayer-Answering King; the white dragon, the Righteous Benevolent King; the black dragon, the Powerful Beneficent King. A little later the dragon mother was recognised and granted the title of Clearly-Answering Princess. Then the difference between the male and female dragons was settled. "The male dragon's horn is undulating, concave, steep; it is strong at the top, but becomes very thin below. The female dragon has a straight nose, a round mane, thin scales and a strong tail."

Mutability
Besides the ordinary dragons there are, too, the scaly dragons, the horned dragons, and the flying dragons. In a thousand years the scaly dragon is believed to change into an ordinary dragon; a dragon in five hundred years changes into a horned dragon; and in a thousand years it changes to a flying dragon. Their colours include red, violet, azure, green, yellow, white and black. The rain dragon is black, the dragon of the mountains and caves amber. The white dragon produces gold through its breath being blown upon the soil of the earth.

The Azure Dragon
But it is the azure dragon that claims most notice. The azure dragon is the symbol of Spring and the appearance of yellow or azure dragons is nearly always a good sign. It is popularly believed that on the night of Confucius' birth two azure dragons descended from the sky and came to his mother's house. She saw them in her dream and gave birth to the great sage. Then again, before the great Emperor Wu was born, a dragon came into the palace, appearing like coloured vapour, coiling and revolving between the rafters and darkening the doors and windows. "The Chung Ho, near the north pole," says an old classic, "is not illuminated by the sun and moon. There is the azure dragon holding a lighted candle in his mouth and lighting up the four directions."

Father Of Emperors

In ancient works the dragon is made to be the father of the great emperors of mythical days, while it is said of the Emperor Hwang-ti in the Bamboo Books: "His countenance was dragonlike." She who was chosen to mother an Emperor was overshadowed by a great cloud, while darkness and winds rose on every side, and made pregnant by a dragon.

There are records of dragon appearances at various times. An angry dragon would appear supported by black clouds, the houses would be rolled up, a brilliant fire would suddenly burn the grain and vegetables to ashes, or coffins in old graves were struck and moved. However, the dragon itself is not immune from fear. It is afraid of iron and a five-coloured thread, but on the other hand it loves precious stones and is fond, too, of roasted swallow-flesh. For this reason those who have eaten swallows must not venture on the waters.

Dragons' Bones

It is said: "When physicians use dragon's bones, they must know these particulars about the dragon's nature as to their likings and hatreds." Bones are dug from caves in Mongolia and transported into China proper to be ground into powder and sold as a drug called "dragon-teeth." The directions for the use of this drug are these: "Everyone using dragon bones should first boil them in the water of odorous grass, wash them twice, beat them into powder, place in a gauze silk bag, put a young swallow into the bag after taking out the bowels, hang above a well for one night, take out, roll into powder and add medicine for building up the kidneys. Its effect will be like that of a god."

The dragon's blood and saliva, too, have their uses. "When the dragon's blood enters the earth it becomes amber." "From the saliva spit out by dragons perfume is made." The saliva is said to bind camphor and musk for several tens of years without evaporating. The Emperor Shen of ancient days was supposed to have used the saliva of a purple dragon as ink in writing the names of holy ministers on tablets of jade.

The Ball In The Mouth
The dragon represented with a ball in its mouth is a popular ornament about which there has been much controversy. Some think the ball represents the thunder which issues from the throat of the dragon; or perhaps the dragon is attempting to swallow the moon. The ancient Chinese might quite possibly have believed that the dragons in the sky, seen as clouds quickly approaching and covering the moon, actually devoured it.

When they did so, the rain soon fell, hence the dragon might be represented so often as swallowing the moon as a symbol of fertilising rains. The usual Chinese name for the ball, however, is "precious pearl", explained in one work as the dragon, the complete male, grasping the "pearl of perfection."

"Galatea" Dragons
Chinese artists have been known to paint such life-like dragons that they have left the canvas, forced their way through the walls, and disappeared into the heavens! In the sixth century, a famous artist painted so wondrous a dragon that, when completed, a black cloud arose from the paper and to the noise of peals of thunder the dragon flew up to the sky. Again in the eighth century it is told that a remarkable dragon actually moved about on the canvas and when the weather was stormy would envelop itself in black clouds!

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 181.

I WISH to mention briefly a new venture which has just been inaugurated and which has been called the Hong Kong Aquarium Society. So new is the Society that, at the time of writing, its rules and objects have not been clearly defined. In brief, the aim is to encourage the keeping of fresh-water fishes in aquaria in the home and to give advice and guidance as to the care and management of such aquaria.

Fishes as pets have many advantages over dogs, cats, birds, mice, rabbits and guinea-pigs, in that they do not wander about, are tidy in their habits, refrain from barking at visitors and do not disturb our midnight slumbers. Even so small a creature as a moth woke my wife one night, and she me, so the blame is on the moth; but the lightest of sleepers could scarcely complain to the police of the vociferous barking of the goldfish next door.

Easy To Manage

Again, the care and maintenance of fish is so easy. A long-haired spaniel may require an hour's attention each day to keep its coat in good condition, free from knots and kinks and free from creases and "hold-me-tights"; but the scales of a guppy keep in position and clever must be the arthropod that can creep beneath to seek shelter or a meal. A canary periodically loses its tail feathers and one prescribes Kruschen and vitamins, but fishes' tails do not moult and we can save our salts to

A LIFETIME OF SERVICE

Lifeboatman's Fine Record

London.

Mr. Tom Read, the coxswain of the Ramsgate lifeboat, who has reached the age limit of 68 years and has been succeeded by Mr. Howard Knight, the second coxswain, has helped to save 503 lives since he entered the lifeboat service at the age of 18.

At present nine of his relatives are members of the Ramsgate lifeboat crew and next year three more will qualify for membership. Next year he celebrates his golden wedding.

Many Awards
During the war Mr. Read was presented with the silver medal and certificate of the R. N. L. I. for services rendered to the American steamer Siberia and an inscribed pair of binoculars for assistance given to the American steamer Plave, both of which came to grief on the Goodwin Sands.

Howard Knight also comes of a seafaring family and joined the lifeboat crew at the age of 17. He has helped to save over 400 lives and took part in the rescue in 1910 of 22 of the crew of the German steamship Marie Leonhardt, for which the lifeboat crew received a personal letter of thanks from the Kaiser.

LESS ACCIDENTS IN LONDON

Other Cities Follow Her Example

New York.—"I am considerably impressed by the news that London has enjoyed a decrease in accidents, besides eliminating a major noise nuisance, since the enactment of the regulations against hooting."

Mr. La Guardia, the mayor of New York, made this statement to reporters after studying a report by Major Henry Curran, who has been in London and Rome investigating their methods of reducing traffic noise.

Mayor La Guardia recently introduced regulations against hooting at night into New York.—Reuter.

cover our own nickel-plated. Not that fishes do not have their drawbacks and little worries, but most fishy ills can be cured and it is not till they are very dead that their presence can become objectionable to the most sensitive of noses and no one could truthfully complain of asthma or hay-fever caught from a goby. For this reason, if for no other, they are suitable for hospitals and sanatoria, for they provide movement which seems so essential for the human eye whether its owner is hale or ailing. Provided that the sister does not disinfect the aqueous medium with carbolic and the doctor does not drop in his scalpel point downwards, mistaking the aquarium for a sterilising dish, no deaths are likely to occur.

Fishes Of Many Lands

If you contemplate keeping fishes, forget the existence of goldfish, which are sensitive creatures, and think rather of the vividly-coloured, but more normal in shape, fishes of the Amazon, Orinoco, Blue Nile and Pearl River—why, the rivers themselves! If thought about for long enough will furnish visions enough to satisfy any day-dreamer! Fishes from America, Africa and Asia will be on view at meetings of the Aquarium Society and advice will be given on their care and management and specimens will be distributed to and exchanged between members. It is the idea of the officers of the society that short talks should be given at each meeting on such topics as the construction of an aquarium; balance between plants and animals; snails and shrimps; fishes of the New Territories; temperature control and aeration; fish diseases—for even fishes have their little worries; breeding; hybridization; and perhaps even fish-photography.

Write to the Secretary, B.E. Sugars Esq., c/o P.W.D., Wanchai Store, for particulars.

CHEAPER CARS WANTED

Prize Offered For Best Design

Paris, A prize of 8,000 francs (£107) is being offered by the French Society of motor-car Engineers for the creation of a two-seater saloon car which will be both cheap to buy in France and cheap to run.

The car is to have an average speed of 75 kilometres (46 miles) an hour and a petrol consumption of a gallon to 60 miles. Its upkeep is not to exceed 300 francs (£4) a month, allowing for travel over a distance of 1,000 kilometres (621 miles).

At present a small French four seater costs anything from 20,000 francs (about £270) to 35,000 francs (£400).

The cheapest four-seater on the market is 12,900 francs (£172), and there is no two-seater at less.

Present Prices
"Half a million Frenchmen would immediately buy a really cheap car," said the President of the Society, unfolding the scheme, and I feel sure that it will be out by 1937, perhaps, even next year.—Reuter.

AN APPETITE FOR EGGS

Strange Taste Shown By African Cow

An egg-eating cow is the pride of Komsha, a little town in Cape Province, South Africa.

All day long it forages around the native huts looking for eggs which the hens usually lay in the open. When it finds a nest, the cow devours the eggs, shell and all.

Hens which offer opposition do so at risk of their lives. Recently a hen sat defiant on her eggs—and the cow, becoming angry, ate her—and then finished off the eggs in the usual way.—Reuter.

A cutting edge of such superlative sharpness as this new electrically tempered Blue Gillette deserves every care and respect. That's why no hand ever touches it until you strip off the last wrapper. But before you do, hold it up to the light. See how the blade is 'anchored' by spots of grease just a fraction of an inch within the folds of the paper, thus removing all possibility of the perfect edges being damaged. Such trouble is well worth while to ensure that these new blades not only give a cleaner, closer shave but stay keen longer and give more shaves per blade. Try one to-day and see for yourself.

DUST IN UPPER ATMOSPHERE

Studying Sirocco In Palestine

ROYAL AIR FORCE LENDS
AEROPLANE

Jerusalem. The Royal Air Force in Palestine are co-operating with the physics department of the Hebrew University to measure the effect of a heat-wave upon the amount of sand particles in the atmosphere.

Dr. Samuel Sambursky, lecturer in experimental physics at the University, believes that under conditions of "Khamasin" (the Arabic word for a 30-day heat spell) in the low pressure area over the Mediterranean and high pressure over the desert, hot sirocco winds from the East bring a considerable amount of sand grains.

He expects to find a relatively dense layer of such particles at a height of between 12,000 to 15,000 feet by spectroscopic research.

The Royal Air Force has lent a machine for the purpose and a preliminary flight showed that the instruments worked satisfactorily.

It will be the first time that spectroscopic measurements of the atmosphere at this altitude have been made.—Reuter.

CAUGHT AT LAST

"King Of The Baltic Bootleggers"

PROSPEROUS CAREER ENDED
BY POLICE

Helsingfors. Finland's most famous bootlegger—Aleksis Alarik Nyman—has been caught by the police and sentenced to 18 months' hard labour here on rum-running charges.

Nyman, known the length and breadth of the Baltic as "The King of the Bootleggers," was originally a taxi-driver. Although he himself is a strict teetotaler, has amassed a vast fortune by smuggling liquor.

His luxuriously furnished office in Helsingfors, ostensibly dealing in motor-cars, had long been watched by the police. His great cunning, however, prevented them from collecting incriminating evidence.

Mislead Document. A mislead document led to his downfall. It fell into the hands of the police and proved Nyman's interest in vessels known to be engaged in rum-running in the Baltic.

Despite his rum-running activities, Nyman is widely liked and respected. He was ever ready to help the distressed and, being a strict teetotaler, enforced a rigid observance of sobriety among his assistants.—Reuter.

SCOTLAND'S SENIOR PEER

Death At Ripe
Old Age

The Earl of Morton, Scotland's senior peer, died early last month at his house, Conaglen, Ardgour. He was 90.

Lord Morton's condition had been serious for some days.

The Earl of Morton had been a representative peer for Scotland since 1886. He was a picturesque figure in the Lords, with his rugged beard and slightly stooping frame. Attendants in the Chamber remember him as a regular attender for years, but none remember his ever rising to speak.

Grandson As Heir

For many years Lady Morton accompanied her husband to the House. While he sat on a back bench she watched him day after day from a seat in the peepers' gallery. As soon as Lord Morton moved to leave, she would rise in time to join him as he left the Chamber.

The earldom dates back to 1458. The heir to the earldom is Lord Aberdeen, a grandson, who was born in 1907.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

TWO CONTRACT SYSTEMS

(By Lieut.-Col. H. M. BEASLEY)

THE views of Contract enthusiasts are not by any means unanimous as to the advisability of making an opening bid of one in a major suit. If the suit contains only four cards.

Let us consider for a moment what are the most probable distributions of a suit, assuming that you make an opening bid on a four-card major suit.

Here is a table giving the five most frequent distributions of a suit when the declared holds four—

	Frequency.
(a) 4 4 3 2	22%
(b) 5 4 3 1	13%
(c) 5 4 2 2	11%
(d) 4 3 3 3	11%
(e) 4 4 4 1	3%
Total	60%

The figures in black type indicate the declarer's holding in the suit. The important point which we wish to investigate is really this:—

What chance have you of finding support in your partner's hand for your original bid? Are the chances in your favour or against you?

All systems of bidding which advocate opening bids on a four-card major suit demand that the partner should not raise the bid in that suit unless he holds normal support which is laid down as a minimum.

(a) Q x x or (b) x x x x. These stipulations, of course, guarantee that the combined hands hold, with support, (a) seven trumps at least, including three honours (assuming declarer holds at least two honours); or (b) eight trumps and at least two honours.

With distribution of the suit 4 4 3 2, the chances of finding four cards in your partner's hand are clearly two to one against your partner holding 4.

You may find three cards in your partner's hand, but here again, for normal support, these three cards must contain a high honour.

If you have opened the bidding on A K x x Hearts, the chances of finding the Queen in your partner's hand are not favourable.

On the other hand, if you have opened holding A J 10 x, the chances of finding the K or Q in your partner's hand are about five to four in your favour.

With the next two most common distributions of a suit—5, 4, 3, 1 and 5, 4, 2, 2—it is evident that if you, as declarer, hold four of the suit, your chances of finding normal support in your partner's hand are again unfavourable.

Now let us assume that you only open with a major suit when you hold five.

The most common distributions of a suit when once the opening

	Frequency.
(a) 5 3 3 2	16%
(b) 5 4 3 1	13%
(c) 5 4 2 2	11%
Total	40%

If the opening bid is made on a five-card suit, the normal support for a raise by the partner can now, with a certain degree of safety, be reduced to three cards.

This stipulated minimum guarantees that the combined hands hold at least eight cards of the suit.

What chances have you of finding the stipulated minimum?

With the suit distributed (a) 5, 4, 3, 1, or (b) 5, 3, 3, 2, the chances are in your favour. If the distribution is (c) 5, 4, 2, 2, the odds are against you.

All opening bids on four-card suits require delicate handling by the responding hand—raises and denial bids must be regulated to give the opening bidder a further chance to show the actual strength of his opening bid.

2,000-YEAR-OLD PROBLEM

Solved By British Authorities

JERUSALEM'S WATER SUPPLY

Jerusalem.—A pipe-line, just completed by the British authorities, has solved Jerusalem's 2,000-year-old water problem.

When the Romans set out in A.D. 1 or 2 to solve the water shortage, they built aqueducts fed by mountain springs. Now, 2,000 years later, the British have gone a step further and are pumping water through a pipe-line river.

Had the Romans thought of the same idea, Pontius Pilate might have avoided the riot in the Temple which cost many Jewish lives about that time. They objected to the aqueduct running into the sacred area.

Rate Halved

The new Jerusalem water scheme, started on November 1, bringing a supply from the Ajaja River, north of Jaffa, provides 3,000,000 gallons daily instead of the 70,000 gallons daily previously furnished by other sources.

Water will cost 10d. per cubic metre in future, half of the present rate. Of this amount 6d. a metre will go to the Palestine Government to cover the £370,000 it advanced for the construction of the line and pumping stations, and the other 4d. will be used for running expenses.—Reuter.

"SPIRITED" PROTEST BY FARMERS

Payment Of Taxes
In Brandy

Paris.—French farmers in the Barenton district, Manche, have decided to pay their taxes in brandy!

At a meeting to protest against the heavy duties imposed on French-distilled spirits, they composed the following letter, which has been sent to the tax-collecting authorities:—

"We have unanimously agreed to offer you brandy. The duty is so terrific that no one will buy it. We are ready to hand it over to you for the equivalent of the duty, that is 2/6 per pint.

"We shall stick to our decision until the duty is brought down to a figure equal to the actual value of the brandy—which still means 100 per cent.—Reuter.

REVIVAL OF DEAD HEARTS

Grotesque Experiments
In Russia

Moscow.—The hearts of 35 children who had died from various diseases have been successfully brought to life again by Professor N. Osinovsky of the Soviet Institute of Protection of the Health of Children and Juveniles.

"By means of a special liquid," says the Tass Agency, "he induced the hearts to beat again for periods of three to four hours."

Some of the hearts had been still for up to 25 hours before the Professor began his experiment. He found that 65 per cent. of the hearts responded to treatment and began to beat again.

These experiments, the Professor says, open up wide avenues for further studies of the causes of children's diseases.—Reuter.

GERMAN MEMORIAL TO FRENCHMEN

Huguenot Museum For Berlin

Berlin.—The French Huguenots who fled to Prussia from the persecutions of Louis XIV are to be commemorated by the erection of a Huguenot Museum in Berlin.

The first Protestant refugees were officially received in Prussia in 1685. To celebrate the 250th anniversary of the event, a monument is also to be erected here to the reformer Calvin.—Reuter.

WEST HAM BEAT MANCHESTER UNITED

100,000 TROOPS
CONCENTRATED
IN NORTH CHINA

Northern Leaders
Loyal

UNITED MILITARY DEFENCE OF NATION

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
Declaring that complete unity has been reached among the Chinese leaders attending the Fifth National Congress in Nanking, the political correspondent of the Canton Daily Sun stated this morning that zealous regard for Chinese political independence and territorial integrity is the cardinal point in the new foreign policy.

"The National Government is strengthened by the presence of Mr. Chou Lou in Nanking," the correspondent continued. "In bringing all the leaders together in Nanking, Dr. H. H. Kung, Minister of Finance, and Mr. T. V. Soong, Chairman of the National Reconstruction Council, have played a leading role."

"They take the position that China must present a united front and must be friendly with those countries which have no political ambition in China."

It is learned that China's silver policy and the strong stand in foreign relations may not be pleasing to Japan. In the circumstances, Chinese military leaders in Canton and Nanking are paying great attention to the military defence of the nation.

About 100,000 Chinese troops are concentrated in Honan province ready to defend North China, if necessary. The loyalty of Chinese military leaders in the North is well assured.

GRAND COUNCIL TO HOLD MEETING

(1) Indispensable commodities and raw materials unobtainable in Italy, including coal, iron, petrol and steel, which can be imported under licence from any country, the principal consideration being the cheapest markets;

(2) Luxury articles such as wines, perfumes and newspapers, a certain percentage of which will be admitted on the basis of the 1934 imports, with preference given to the non-sanctionist countries; and

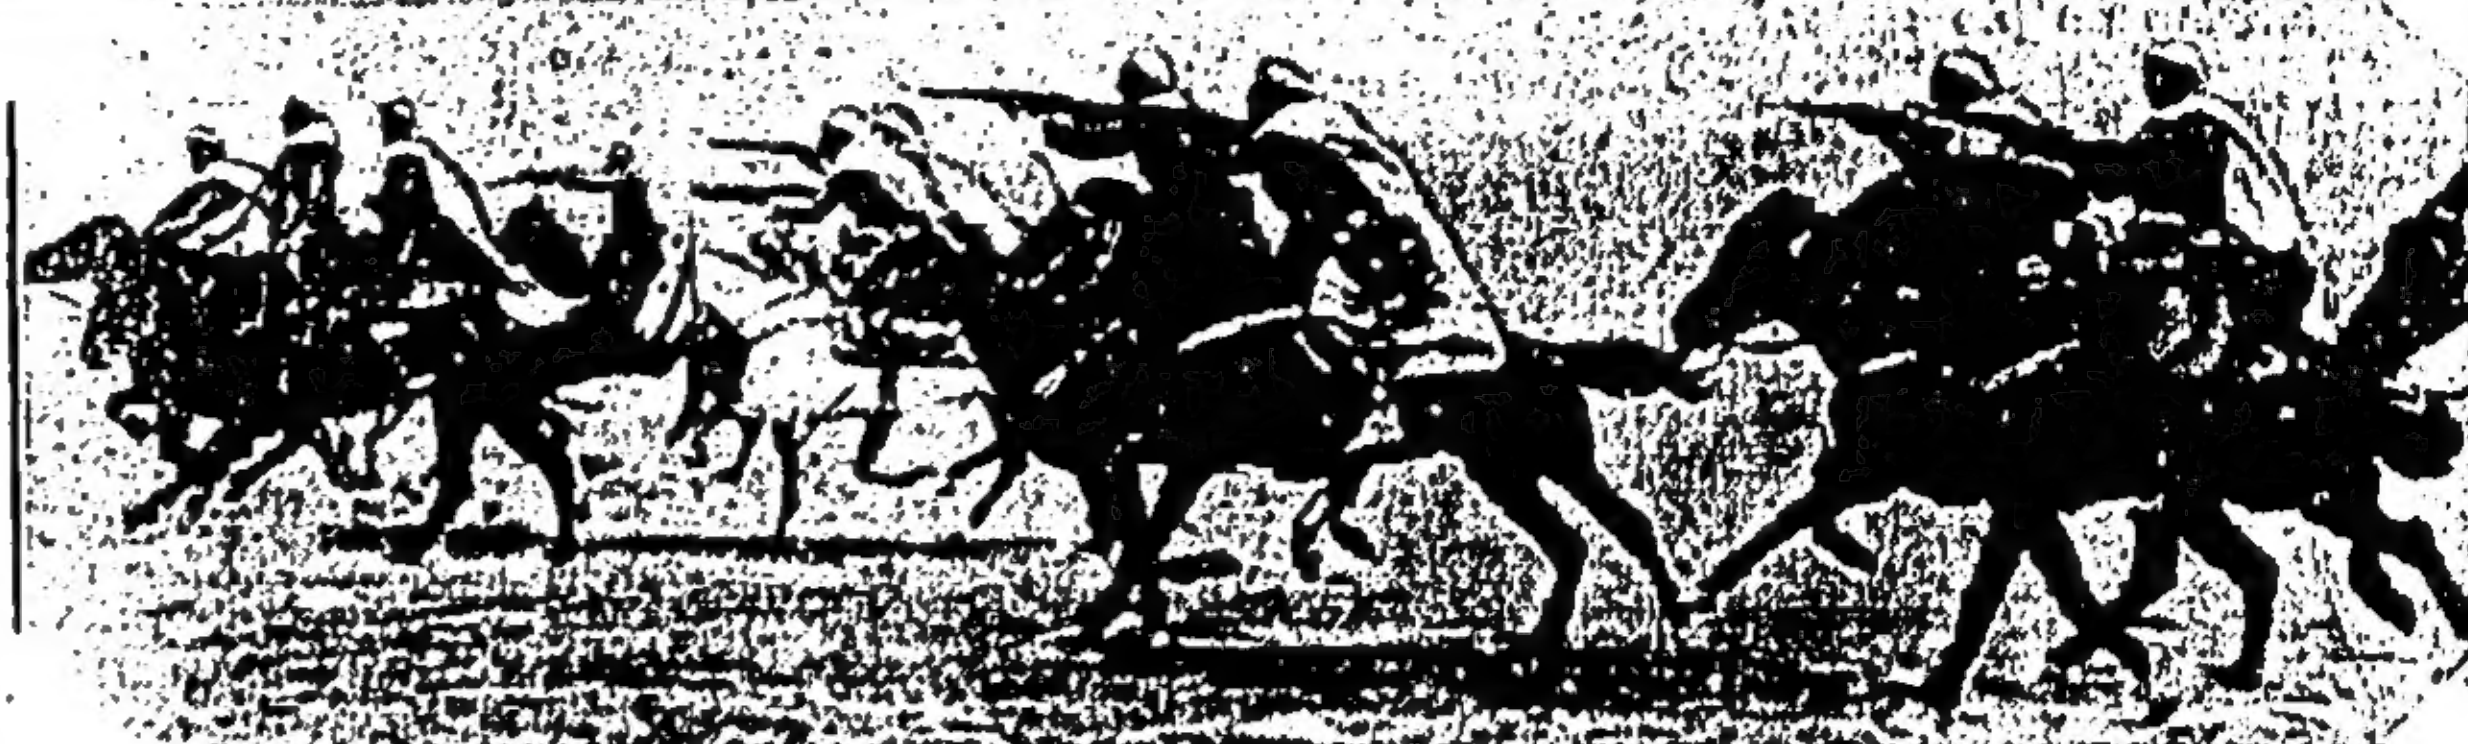

(3) Goods of which the import will be freely admitted, comprising gold, silver and copper currency.—Reuter.

PROTEST IN FRANCE
Paris: A vigorous protest against anti-Italian sanctions has been addressed to the Premier, M. Laval, by the President of the syndical chamber of the French textile industry on behalf of Right adherents of the association.

The President calls attention to the disastrous effects which the application of sanctions must have on the textile industry, whose exports to Italy amount to one-tenth of the total French exports to that country. The protest describes the application of sanctions as an "unmethodical, precipitate adventure."

IMPORTS INTO BRITAIN
Berlin: The British Government has informed the German Government that, in consequence of the application of sanctions against Italy, all goods of German origin exported to Great Britain from November 18 must bear a mark of origin.

It is semi-officially stated here that the German Government, in its reply, called the British Government's attention to the fact

An Italian invasion of Egypt would be met by Anglo-Egyptian cavalry such as shown above in a practice charge across the desert sands. These men are rated among the world's fiercest warriors. Patrols such as this are stationed near the Libyan border, where huge Italian forces are said to have assembled.

SHORTAGE OF SUBSIDIARY BANKNOTES

Great Inconvenience
To Traders

KWANGTUNG AUTHORITIES
TAKING STEPS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
The shortage of subsidiary banknotes is a serious inconvenience to trade, because the present supply is not enough, following the abandonment of the silver standard. The present disruption is due to the sudden devaluation of the white metal.

At first the official announcement required all payments of less than one dollar to be paid in silver. This scheme was unsound, since there was no silver dollar, but subsidiary coins as the silver standard. Then the order was changed and stipulated that all payments under a dollar were also to be made in notes.

The Kwangtung Provincial Bank announces that paper money of 10-cent and 20-cent denominations will soon be circulated for the convenience of merchants.

It is also announced that a committee to control the issue of Government notes will be formed in the near future. This is to secure confidence in the paper money.

Meanwhile, the premium on Hong Kong currency has been dropping during the past few days. The rate to-day is 45 cents on the dollar, as compared with 65 cents two days ago.

SIXTO ESCOBAR TRIUMPHS

Regains World Boxing Championship

LOU SALICA FLOORED
IN THIRD ROUND

New York, Yesterday.

Sixto Escobar, the Puerto Rican from Mexico City, regained the world's bantamweight boxing championship here last night in the eyes of the New York State Athletic Commission when he outpointed Lou Salica in a 15-round contest at Madison Square Garden.

Escobar, who commenced as a 7 to 5 favourite, floored Salica for a count of nine in the third round and there after administered a terrific beating to the American.—Reuter.

Escobar is a comparative newcomer to the boxing firmament and a year ago was unknown. He came into the limelight on June 26, of last year, when he knocked out Charles Griffin, leading contender for Panama Al Brown's bantam weight crown, in the third round of their 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden, the scene of his present triumph.

Early this year he won the title for the first time when he beat Panama Al Brown at Mexico City, but lost it soon after to Lou Salica, whom he beat last night in the return bout.

CENTURY AGAINST TOURISTS

VICTORIA 229 FOR 6

Melbourne, Yesterday.

As was the case on the opening day, the second day's play in the four-day match between the M.C.C. tourists and Victoria was considerably interrupted by rain, the resumption being delayed for hours to-day on account of the sodden state of the pitch due to rain overnight.

Victoria, who had scored 30 for 1 when stumps were drawn on the first day, took their total to 229 for 6. Riggs scoring 112 and Sealie 60.—Reuter.

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.
The Minister of the Interior, M. Paganot, left Paris for St. Pierre, de Chartreuse immediately on receipt of the news of the catastrophe which has befallen the famous monastery in consequence of a landslide.

Despatches here estimate the damage at 35,000,000 francs, including 10,000,000 francs' worth of liquor and the manufacturing plant. The stores of liquor are still in the cellars, but it is feared that the ceilings will be unable to withstand the enormous pressure of some 500,000 cubic metres of earth which is now weighing on them. — Trans-Ocean Service.

The Abyssinian forces under the command of Ras Seyoum are said to have been reinforced by 6,000 men. The Italian aviators, it is asserted, have now located the headquarters of Ras Seyoum at Antale, where they clearly distinguished the red tent of the Abyssinian commander.—Trans-Ocean Service.
